GANGSTERS FOILED IN HOLD UP-ATTEMPT

REPORT NINETEEN DEAD WHEN FLOODS SWEEP AREA NEAR SEATTLE, WASH.

Heavy Rains Flood Stream Valleys, Breaking Dams; Auto With Six Passengers Swept Into Raging Torrent; Seven Families Marooned

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 27.—Nineteen persons were dead today, victims of the worst series of flood disasters in the Pacific Northwest.

Report from a railroad crew said that raging flood waters above North Bend in the Cascades, twenty-five miles east of Seattle, swept an automobile with six passengers off the highway and that all were drowned.

More rain was forecast for the Northwest and the high flood stages were yet to be reached in nearly all sections, with rivers overflowing their banks.

Seven persons were killed at Edgewick, Wash., when a dam broke in a natural basin above the town in the Cascade foothills, and sent down a 150-foot wall of water to wipe out the lumber town.

A father and son were killed when a dam broke at Issaquah, also in the Cascades.

Rescue workers were still searching for four missing men trapped in a slide on the Seattle municipal power development on the Skagit River. They were menaced by avalanches.

Many mountain towns were imperiled. Seven families were reported marooned in the raging river valley, but no craft could reach them because of the terrific current.

Hundreds of men are working frantically to relieve the menace of flood conditions in eastern Washington and northern Idaho as streams overflow their banks.

Eight hundred feet of the Great Northern Railway main line was washed out west of Odessa and 200 feet of the Northern Pacific-Lewiston, Ida., branch line was washed out west of Spania.

Automobile stage traffic to Seattle was suspended because highways are imbedded in deep water. In the towns of Walla Walla, Col.

JAPANESE TO LEAVE
QUESTION OF TROOP
LANDING TO ARMY

Will Not Interfere With Commanders Powers
Told

TOKYO, Feb. 27.—The question of landing additional Japanese troops in the international settlement at Shanghai, raised by yesterday's demarche of the foreign ambassadors here, will be left up to Japanese military authorities to decide, International News Service learned today.

In replying to the written representations of the United States, British, French and Italian ambassadors asking that no more troops be landed in the settlement and that Japanese warships be moved downstream, Foreign Minister Ken-ichi Yoshisawa will point out that the civil government is not in a position to interfere with military operations.

The representations were made following the departure of General Yoshinori Shirakawa, member of the supreme war council, to take over military command at Shanghai. Large forces of troops accompanied him.

Whether these troops are to be landed in the settlement is a matter for the supreme command of the emperor, Yoshisawa will point out.

In addition, he will declare that in several instances the foreign powers landed troops in the settlement for the purpose of protecting the lives and property of their nationals, so the Japanese government is unable to understand why the powers should raise objections to similar action by Japan.

LOVE

LOYAL TO GUNMAN

Mrs. Mary Kelle, who deserted her husband and two children to lead the life of a gangster's moll, is held by New York police along with her sweetheart, Joe Pliskowski, Cleveland's public enemy No. 1, nabbed after a long search, and charged with murder and robbery. She took the blame for the $100,000 worth of jewelry found in their apartment.

FIVE FINED AS POLICE SOLVE AUTO THEFTS

Girl Arrested With Bandit Gang Here; All Jailed

Chief of Police O. H. Cornwell believes that numerous recent auto thefts have been solved through the arrest within the last four days of four young men and a 20-year-old sister of one of the suspects, who were each fined $100 and costs and given thirty-day jail sentences on petit larceny charges by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Friday afternoon.

Those fined and sentenced were Arthur Graham, 25, of 248 Bellbrook Ave.; Raymond Graham, 20, his brother, same address; Eugene Dale, 19, Xenia-Clinton Pike; Lawrence Plenkhar, 18, Cedarville; and Thelma Burden, 20, Cedarville, sister of Plenkhar.

The quintet was accused specifically of stealing eight gallons of gasoline and a lap robe from a sedan owned by Fred Dobbins, parked near the U. Church in Cedarville, February 16.

The Graham brothers, police say signed written confessions of the robbery and implicated the others. A 14-year-old girl, also involved in the case, was turned over to Juvenile Court authorities.

Police suspect the group of having been responsible for the theft of other automobiles, later abandoned after gas tanks had been drained and removable accessories stolen.

Arthur Graham, according to police, will be returned to the Mansfield state reformatory as a parole violator. He was sentenced from this county in 1929 to serve a one to twenty-year term for forgery, and was released on parole last April.

Authorities were engaged during the last four days in rounding up the suspects, after considerable investigation pointed to the group. Arthur Graham was arrested last Tuesday by police, his brother and Dale were apprehended here Thursday and Plenkhar and his sister were taken into custody at Cedarville Friday morning by Hayes McLean, village marshal.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Ohio, home of the Anti-Saloon League, continues overwhelmingly wet in the second report of the Literary Digest's prohibition poll.

Although the wets maintained a commanding lead in returns all over the country, the dries registered a gain of from 15.85 to 19.28 per cent in the total vote in the second week's returns.

The 62,639 votes recorded in the second report for Ohio were distributed as follows: for continuance of eighteenth amendment, 17,584; for repeal of eighteenth amendment, 45,055.

New York held its record as being the wettest state with 87.02 per cent of the votes listed for repeal, although that figure was a slight decrease. North Carolina, with 42.21 per cent favoring continuance remained leading the dry states.

GENERAL PERSHING
ILL IN HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Victim of an attack of laryngitis, General John J. Pershing, America's World War commander of U. S. armies, was recuperating in Walter Reed General Hospital here today.

General Pershing who is in his seventy-second year, was induced to enter the hospital for treatment and a rest cure. His physician, Col. Glenn I. Jones, said he was not seriously ill.

Former Ohio Toolmaker Scores In Opera Debut

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—A new and colorful native-born operatic star was before the public today—Arthur Anderson, of New Philadelphia, Ohio, former toolmaker, telephone lineman, Jack-of-all-trades, marine and engineer on a sailing ship.

Anderson climaxed his fight to the top of the musical world by making his operatic debut at the Metropolitan Opera House as Donner (Thunder) in a gala production of "Das Rheingold," a prelude to the Wagnerian trilogy of music-dramas.

Former football and baseball player, Anderson, who looks more than six feet in height, made an impressive thunder god. He is a basso and the quality of his performance received unanimous praise from the critics.

A distinguished audience crowded the famous Metropolitan as this was the only performance of "Das Rheingold" to be given this season.

But Anderson sang only for one in the audience—his mother, Mrs. R. A. Anderson came from New Philadelphia for the event.

"My mother had never heard me sing in a theatre before," said Anderson in an interview with International News Service between scenes. "I'm going to try my best to have her enjoy it."

CHINESE RUSH MORE TROOPS TO BATTLE SCENE; FRONT IS QUIET

SHANGHAI, Feb. 27, 10:21 p. m.—On the heels of Japanese claims of the capture of Kiangwan after furious fighting, two more divisions of Chinese troops were ordered to Shanghai today.

The reinforcements will vastly strengthen the Chinese defense lines between Chapei and Woosung. Signaling the gradual amalgamation of China's scattered armies to aid in the defense of Shanghai, the forty-seventh division, under the command of General Shang Kuang Yun-Hsiang, arrived aboard troop trains at the Markham road station shortly after 3 p. m. This division includes a mixed brigade.

The other two divisions are expected to be thrown into line shortly.

The soldiers of the forty-seventh have excellent reputations as fighters. They are shock troops of General Chiang Kai-Shek, and in recent months have been engaged in battling Communists in northern Hupeh province.

The reinforcements are expected to be sent into action almost immediately in the Kiangwan sector. Japanese military headquarters announced that the town, which had changed hands three times since the outbreak of fighting in this district, had been taken over completely by Japanese troops late this afternoon.

PARENTS OF FORMER STUDENT TO RESIST
SHOOTING CHARGES

Oppose Extradition of Son Identified As Attacker

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—The wealthy parents of 20-year-old William Howell Blackburn, Purdue University student, today declared they will resist extradition of their son to Indianapolis where he is wanted on a charge of attempting to murder a motorist who gave him a "hit."

Ross M. Blackburn, a railway supply distributor, asserted that his son is innocent and supported the youth's insistence that he was 100 miles south of Indianapolis on the night of January 28 when Russell Gardner was shot three times by a hitch-hiker.

Gardner, partially paralyzed as the result of three wounds at the base of his brain, identified pictures of young Blackburn as his assailant, authorities said. Police last night went to the Blackburn home and arrested the college student who was placed in the Oak Park jail.

The youth's arrest was unwittingly brought about by his father who circulated pictures of the student in an effort to locate him. Young Blackburn had failed in the examination at Purdue. One of the pictures was received by Indianapolis police who took it to Gardner for identification. Gardner was a purchasing agent for the Indiana Highway Commission.

After an intensive search young Blackburn was located at Hollywood, Fla., and he was returned to his Oak Park home.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—A blind young woman who vainly waited for four years to hear the voice of the man she loved today gave up her vigil.

Deciding that the loss of her vision was a hopeless barrier to recovery of romance, Mrs. Sylvia Riskey finally went to court and obtained a divorce from Theodore Riskey with whom she had eloped six years ago. The decree was issued on grounds of desertion and Mrs. Riskey asked that no alimony payments be ordered.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Feb. 27.—Portsmouth was roused today by the shooting of City Detective John Barnes, 40, in a downtown gun fight with an alleged bandit.

Paul Christian, 29, of Huntington, W. Va., was held as a suspect and definite charges were expected to be filed against him today.

Christian fired four shots into the detective's chest, police said, when the detective tried to prevent him from robbing Mrs. W. B. Woods, William Mucha, 25, a passerby, seized the injured detective's gun, pursued Christian, and finally captured him. In the fight, Christian was shot in the hand, police said.

Barnes formerly was employed as a bridge worker at Dayton.

COUNTY DISABLED VETERANS TO FORM ASSOCIATION HERE

Disabled ex-servicemen of Greene County are being invited to gather at 8 o'clock Saturday night in the Court House assembly room to form a local chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, Inc., a Congressional organization with national headquarters at Cincinnati.

Earl H. Crowe, Springfield, national organizer and junior vice-commander of the state department organization, will assist in effecting the organization and will address the meeting. He will discuss matters pertaining to compensation, hospitalization and the new disability allowance and will answer questions on these subjects, endeavoring to show that a local chapter will be of direct benefit to the disabled veterans and to this county.

Names of fifty-six disabled war veterans in Greene County are contained in a partial list obtained by the national headquarters, according to Mr. Crowe, who reveals the organization has thirty-three chapters in Ohio. Local chapters are in process of formation at Wilmington and Washington C. H., he said.

American ex-service men who served this country during the late war, and who were wounded, gassed, injured, or disabled by reason of such service, are eligible for membership in the D. A. V. The fact a veteran may not be drawing compensation for his disability does not bar him from eligibility to join the proposed local chapter. Ten members constitute the minimum number necessary to organize a chapter.

DAYTON ATTORNEY ENTERS RACE FOR COURT OF APPEALS

Announcement has been made by John C. Shea, a member of the law firm of McConaughy, Shea, Demann and McConaughy, of Dayton, of his candidacy in the Democratic primaries in May for judge of the court of appeals in the second district.

Mr. Shea is an active practicing attorney of thirty years experience and has found time to engage in other legal activities. He was founder and former dean of the College of Law of the University of Dayton, and is now a member of its faculty. He has been an active member of the American Bar Association and the Ohio Bar Association and has held important committee assignments in the latter association. He studied law under the late John A. McMahon, and finished his legal education in the college of law of Western Reserve University at Cleveland.

DOUSTER ACTION IN SCHOOL BOARD CASE IN SUPREME COURT

Ouster of Edwin L. Stafford from membership on the board of education of Beavercreek Twp. rural school district was taken under consideration Friday by the Ohio Supreme Court.

The court has admitted the appeal by Erith N. Shoup from a decree handed down by the Court of Appeals December 17, refusing to oust Stafford from the board.

Dismissing the ouster action brought by Shoup, the appellate court decided, by a 2 to 1 vote of the judges, that Stafford may continue to serve on the board, at least as a de facto member.

Shoup, in his suit, had challenged the legality of Stafford's election on the board to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of George M. Shank last July 25. The status of Stafford became complicated when the remaining board members later ignored a previous action and elected Shoup to the seat which Stafford held and is still holding.

CENTRAL HIGH WILL GRADUATE LARGEST CLASS IN HISTORY

Central High School will graduate the largest class in its history at the seventy-third annual commencement exercises the last week in May or the middle of June.

Ninety-two students comprise the 1932 senior class. The largest previous class to be graduated had eighty-four students.

The commencement speaker is expected to be selected soon, but the date for the graduation ceremony remains uncertain, depending upon whether funds are available to run the schools the full length of a regular nine-month term. Opening of schools last fall was delayed two weeks, and the second semester may be extended two weeks longer to about the middle of June.

Bishop J. H. Jones left last week for Philadelphia in the interest of the work of his district. He will attend the bishop's council in Tampa, Fla. at which time an assignment will be made for one of the bishops to deliver the episcopal address when the General Conference meets in Cleveland in May.

Mr. and Mrs. Oille Cook of Kansas City, Mo. spent Friday night with Miss Lucinda Cook on their homeward trip from Washington, D. C. Mr. Cook is principal of Lincoln High School of Kansas City. He was attending the meeting of the department of superintendents of the N. E. A. last week in Washington, D. C.

Dr. W. R. McChesney of Cedarville opened Founder's Week last Sunday with an address on George Washington. Dr. McChesney is a friend of long standing of the school and is always greeted with a large audience which enjoys his talks.

A group of ten Wilberforcians went to Wittenberg College, Thursday night on a mission of intercollegiate fellowship. Miss Grace Woodson gave a lecture on her travels in Europe. Mr. Walker and Miss Lamber each sang a group of spirituals. Mrs. Grace E. Wales presided at the piano.

Monday morning during chapel service, Dean F. A. McGinnis of the college of liberal arts delivered a short talk on high scholarship and the necessity of better work on the part of the student body. The dean read the following list of students who made an average of "A" for the Autumn quarter: college of liberal arts—Andrew Hughes, Earl A. Alfred, Miss Elizabeth Bowser; college of education—Leonard Blagburn, Omar Ward, John Harewood, John B. Love.

Prof. W. H. A. Booker of the department of English spoke on the life of George Washington, Monday, to the students of East High School, Xenia.

Miss Fay Williams, who is taking graduate work at Ohio State University, spent Sunday with Mrs. Ada Young.

Mr. Howard Daniel, manager of "The Harmony Four" took the young men to Cincinnati Thursday to fill two engagements over the air. At 9:15 they sang for the WLW station and at 5:30 for WSAL. "The Harmony Four" is making a reputation for the school and its broadcasting of Southern melodies and Negro spirituals is bringing forth demands for its regular appearance on the radio programs for the week.

Monday afternoon was the regular opening exercises for the seventy-sixth annual Founders' Day celebration. The first program was given Monday evening in Beacom Gymnasium. The exercises were under the guidance of Messrs. Mack Green, Henry Corrothers and Miss Mabel Hall. The participants were members of the physical educational department, who sang songs, gave tap dances and short sketches. One of the main features was the acrobatic stunts given by the boys of the gym class. Wednesday afternoon the Founders' Day address was delivered by Rev. A. E. Allen of Wayman A. M. E. Chapel, Dayton, speaking on "Our Heritage," and giving examples of race heritage. In the evening the activities closed in Galloway Auditorium with spacy programs given by the different organizations and students. The program closed with each department making a financial report of funds raised. The receipts amounted to $573.74, which was considered a good report considering the present depression.

The funeral of Mr. Parker Alexander was held in the Jones Auditorium Thursday afternoon at 1:30, the Rev. L. C. Ridley officiating. Mr. Parker was an old citizen of the community, coming to Wilberforce when the late Bishop B. F. Lee was president of the school. He had a wide acquaintance among the older graduates. Before his health failed he ran a restaurant on the campus for many years. His industrious ways made him many friends and he gave help to the needy students. During his residence at the State Hospital in Dayton, the old citizens of the community made him weekly visits. Miss Hallie Q. Brown, Mrs. Gussie Jones and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Anderson were his staunch friends and made frequent visits to see that he had necessary things to make him comfortable. The interment took place at Tarbox Cemetery.

The chess tournament proved to be a very interesting and hard fought one last Saturday. The tournament was principally witnessed by those interested in playing chess. The players from West Virginia State College were Messrs. Posey, Moore, Findlay and Good, who carried away the championship by a score of twelve points. The second prize went to the Lockland Y. M. C. A. team, Messrs. Jones and Spell who made nine points. The lowest score was three, made by Messrs. Davidson, Shields, Heard, Pyrtle, Byrd and Jordan. The next chess tournament will be held at West Virginia State College, Institute, W. Va. the early part of March.

COUNTY DISABLED VETERANS TO FORM ASSOCIATION HERE

Disabled ex-servicemen of Greene County are being invited to gather at 8 o'clock Saturday night in the Court House assembly room to form a local chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, Inc., a Congressionally recognized veterans' organization with national headquarters at Cincinnati.

Earl H. Crowe, Springfield, national organizer and junior vice-commander of the state department organization, will assist in effecting the organization and will address the meeting. He will discuss matters pertaining to compensation, hospitalization and the new disability allowance and will answer questions on these subjects.

Names of fifty-six disabled war veterans in Greene County are contained in a partial list obtained by the national headquarters, according to Mr. Crowe, who reveals the organization has thirty-three chapters in Ohio. Local chapters are in process of formation at Wilmington and Washington C. H., he said.

American ex-service men who served this country during the late war, and who were wounded, gassed, injured, or disabled by reason of such service, are eligible for membership in the D. A. V. The fact a veteran may not be drawing compensation for his disability does not bar him from eligibility to join the proposed local chapter. Ten members constitute the minimum number necessary to organize a chapter.

DAYTON ATTORNEY ENTERS RACE FOR COURT OF APPEALS

Announcement has been made by John C. Shea, a member, law firm of McConnaughey, Shea, Demann and McConnaughey, of Dayton, of his candidacy in the Democratic primaries in May for judge of the court of appeals in the second district.

Mr. Shea is an active practicing attorney of thirty years experience and has found time to engage in other legal activities. He was founder and former dean of the College of Law of the University of Dayton, and is now a member of its faculty. He has been an active member of the American Bar Association and has held important committee assignments in the latter association. He studied law under the late John A. McMahon, and finished his legal education in the college of law of Western Reserve University at Cleveland.

LUMBERTON

Mr. and Mrs. John Nichols who have been confined to their beds the past week suffering with the grip are improving slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McKinley and family have moved to Ft. William and Mr. Upton and family of Dayton have moved into the house vacated by the McKinelys.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Harris attended the funeral of their nephew Mr. Donald Harris at New Vienna Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman St. John and daughters Ednah and Carma of Springfield were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hatt and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fuller and sons of Richmond, Ind., spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Haines and family.

Mr. John Odenthal and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Austing and daughter of Latonia were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Lieberman, Monday.

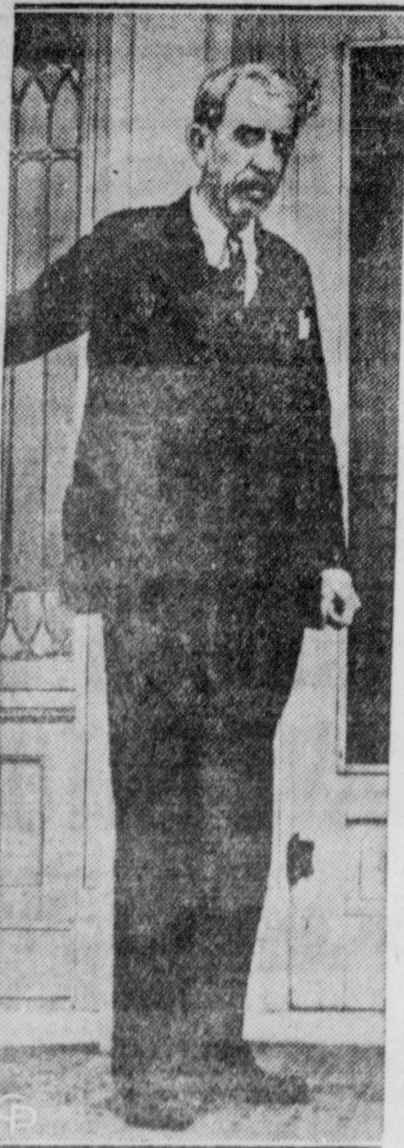

To See Powers Die

Warden Scroggins

More than 1,000 morbidly curious persons from six states have applied for permission to witness the execution of Harry Powers, mail order Romeo, scheduled for March 18, at the West Virginia state penitentiary at Moundsville, according to Warden A. C. Scroggins, above. Only 20 spectators, newspapermen and officials will be admitted, however. Powers was convicted of slaying two women and three children.

DOUSTER ACTION IN SCHOOL BOARD CASE IN SUPREME COURT

Ouster of Edwin L. Stafford from membership on the board of education of Heaverbrook Twp. rural school district was taken under consideration Friday by the Ohio Supreme Court.

The court has admitted the appeal by Erith N. Shoup from a decree handed down by the Court of Appeals December 17, refusing to oust Stafford from the board.

Dismissing the ouster action brought by Shoup, the appellate court decided, by a 2 to 1 vote of the judges, that Stafford may continue to serve on the board, at least as a de facto member.

Shoup, in his suit, had challenged the legality of Stafford's election on the board to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of George M. Shank last July 25. The status of Stafford became complicated when the remaining board members later ignored a previous action and elected Shoup to the seat which Stafford held and is still holding.

CENTRAL HIGH WILL GRADUATE LARGEST CLASS IN HISTORY

Central High School will graduate the largest class in its history at the seventy-third annual commencement exercises the last week in May or the middle of June.

Ninety-two students comprise the 1932 senior class. The largest previous class to be graduated had eighty-four students.

The commencement speaker is expected to be selected soon, but the date for the graduation ceremony remains uncertain, depending upon whether funds are available to run the schools the full length of a regular nine-month term. Opening of schools last fall was delayed two weeks, and the second semester may be extended two weeks longer to about the middle of June.

A GOOD FIRE RECORD

CLEVELAND—Fire losses in Cleveland during 1931 dropped off nearly thirty-five per cent from the 1930 total to a record low for four years, the annual report of the department showed. The 1931 loss totaled $2,381,102 as compared with a loss of $3,531,035 in 1930.

RADIO INDICTED BY MAGAZINE

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. — A program, "The March of Time Magazine's radio," was discontinued after last night and comment in the current issue of the magazine said the protests received against discontinuing of the program "constituted an indictment of radio on a charge of failure to provide."

Time said it was discontinued because "further expenditure on radio at this time would not justify itself."

The program presented each Friday night for half an hour, consisted of dramatization of news events.

"That tens of thousands of listeners should protest so violently," said the magazine, "was testimony to the leanness of radio fare."

"For all its blatant claim to being a medium for education, radio contributes little of its own beyond the considerable service of bringing good music to the millions. Yet radio men splutter with rage when radio is called 'just another musical instrument.'"

"Unlike the newspaper which sells advertising in order to fulfill its prime function of giving news, the advertisement is radio's prime offering. Also unlike a newspaper, which increases its pages along with any increase in advertising, radio is restricted to the hours of the day. Of those hours it sells as many as it can. Naturally, the evening hours when most listeners are tuned in—the 'front page of radio'—is virtually the property of the advertiser to do with as he pleases."

"Should Time or any other business feel obliged to be the philanthropist of the air to continue paying for radio advertising it does not want in order to provide radio with something worth while? Or is it up to the radio chains to improve the quality of broadcasts even at some reduction in their fat profits?"

Mrs. J. B. Schultz, near Xenia, who has been ill at home since February 11, is now improving.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. North, S. Detroit St., will leave Sunday for St. Petersburg, Fla., to spend three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Haines (Martha Van Tress), Chester neighborhood, Clinton County, formerly of near Xenia, are announcing the birth of a son, Bernard, Jr., Wednesday.

Mr. U. E. Clark, Hill St., employee at the Dinges drug store, is confined to his home by illness.

Mrs. J. W. Gibney, N. Galloway St., returned home Friday from New York, where she spent several days this week.

Mrs. Fred Stephens, N. West St., is confined to her home suffering from an attack of influenza.

POULTRY SHOW HERE ATTRACTS CROWDS; CLOSES SATURDAY

Good attendance marked the second day of the three-day southern Ohio baby chick show and poultry exhibit at the state armory Friday. The show will close Saturday evening. On the last day a poultry clinic was held as an additional feature.

R. C. Cray, of the department of poultry husbandry, and J. C. Neff, extension worker for the department of rural economics of Ohio State University, were the principal speakers on the educational program Friday afternoon and evening.

The forenoon program was continued until the afternoon. Prof. Cray gave three lectures in the afternoon, discussing nutritional diseases, the care of eggs to maintain their quality, and feeding and management practices that affect egg quality. Mr. Neff, who lectured twice, spoke upon the present poultry situation and outlook, and the sources of farm income in Greene County.

A poultry clinic in charge of Mr. Burhans, representative of The George H. Lee Co., Omaha, Neb., took place between 2 and 3 o'clock. The evening program included a lecture by Mr. Neff on the subject, "The Future of the Poultry Industry in Ohio," and an illustrated lecture by Prof. Cray, a film strip showing factors limiting success with poultry.

FELLOW-WORKERS HONOR XENIAN

JOHN W. GARDNER, SR., 824 N. Detroit St., who was retired from active service as a telegraph operator on the Pennsylvania Railroad February 1, was recently honored at Cincinnati when he was presented a Morris chair, reading lamp and smoking stand by a group of his friends as a token of the esteem in which he is held by fellow-workers.

At the time of his retirement Mr. Gardner was placed on the honor roll of the railroad. He had a record of fifty-one years and six months' service and on February 23 was presented a fifty-year service button by R. C. Barnard, general agent and superintendent at Cincinnati.

Mr. Gardner was born at Clarksville January 30, 1862 and after leaving school there entered the service of the old C. and M. V. Railroad on October 1, 1879. With the exception of a short period he has been in continuous service until the time he was placed on the honor roll.

Mr. Gardner is a member of the First M. E. Church here and also an active member of the Masonic Lodge.

Jesus Raises Lazarus From the Dead

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

John 11:32-44

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buecher

In the village of Bethany, near Jerusalem, Jesus frequently was a welcome guest of his friends, Mary, Martha and Lazarus. When Lazarus, therefore, became ill, his sisters sent word for Jesus to come to heal him, saying simply: "Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick."

But Lazarus died and was buried four days before Jesus reached Bethany. Jesus first met Martha and comforted her, saying, "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die."

After Jesus had talked with both Martha and Mary, he requested them to show him where they had buried their brother. As Jesus stood with the sisters beside the tomb, he wept with them, showing his love and sympathy for his friends in their sorrow.

Jesus ordered the stone to be taken from the door of the tomb. Then, after praying to God, thanking him for the power Jesus knew he had over death, Jesus cried with a loud voice: "Lazarus, come forth." Immediately Lazarus arose to greet his sisters and to worship Jesus.

XENIAN SEES UNUSUAL METEOR; WILL REPORT TO OBSERVATORY

KEELE HARRIS, 1040 E. Main St., electrical engineer in the employ of the city at the municipal waterworks plant north of Old Town, revealed Saturday he had seen a brilliant meteor between 1 and 2 o'clock Thursday morning, also reported seen by a graduate student doing research work at the Harvard University Observatory, Cambridge, Mass.

Harvard University officials requested anyone who had seen the celestial nomad to write their observations of it, and Harris intends to comply with the request, he said. The meteor, estimated to have been only six miles from earth, and moving slowly with a brilliant blue-green effect, probably came from outside the solar system, the observatory officials declared.

Harris, who has been employed at the waterworks plant for seven years, working with the night shift, said the "fire ball" appeared to settle in the sky in the southeast.

First observing the strange phenomenon through a window, Harris said he ran to the doorway and watched the meteor for fully three minutes before it finally disappeared from view.

Harris described the meteor as a "white ball" which appeared to be as large as a "man's head." It was apparently moving slowly and illuminated the sky, he said. Had the moon not been shining, the lighting effect would have been even more pronounced, Harris declared.

RADIO INDICTED BY MAGAZINE

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. — program, "The March of Time Magazine's radio Time," was discontinued after last night and comment in the current issue of the magazine said the protests received against discontinuing of the program "constituted an indictment of radio on a charge of failure to provide."

Time said it was discontinued because "further expenditure on radio at this time would not justify itself."

The program presented each Friday night for half an hour, consisted of dramatization of news events.

"That tens of thousands of listeners should protest so violently," said the magazine, "was testimony to the leanness of radio fare."

"For all its blatant claim to being a medium for education, radio contributes little of its own beyond the considerable service of bringing good music to the millions. Yet radio men sputter with rage when radio is called 'just another musical instrument.'"

"Unlike the newspaper which sells advertising in order to fulfill its prime function of giving news, the advertisement is radio's prime offering. Also unlike a newspaper, which increases its pages along with any increase in advertising, radio is restricted to the hours of the day. Of those hours it sells as many as it can. Naturally, the evening hours when most listeners are tuned in—the 'front page' of radio—is virtually the property of the advertiser to do with as he pleases."

"Should Time or any other business feel obliged to the 'philanthropist of the air' to continue paying for radio advertising it does not want in order to provide radio with something worth while? Or is it up to the radio chains to improve the quality of broadcasts even at some reduction in their fat profits?"

Mrs. J. B. Schultz, near Xenia, who has been ill at her home since February 11, is now improving.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. North, S. Detroit St., will leave Sunday for St. Petersburg, Fla., to spend three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Haines (Martha Van Tress), Chester neighborhood, Clinton County, formerly of near Xenia, are announcing the birth of a son, Bernard, Jr., Wednesday.

Mr. U. E. Clark, Hill St., employee at the Dinges drug store, is confined to his home by illness.

Mrs. J. W. Gibney, N. Galloway St., returned home Friday from New York, where she spent several days this week.

Mrs. Fred Stephens, N. West St., is confined to her home suffering from an attack of influenza.

POULTRY SHOW HERE ATTRACTS CROWDS; CLOSES SATURDAY

Good attendance marked the second day of the three-day southern Ohio baby chick show and poultry exhibit at the state armory Friday. The show will close Saturday evening. On the last day a poultry clinic was held as an additional feature.

R. C. Cray, of the department of poultry husbandry, and J. C. Neff, extension worker for the department of rural economics of Ohio State University, were the principal speakers on the educational program Friday afternoon and evening.

The forenoon program was continued until the afternoon. Prof. Cray gave three lectures in the afternoon, discussing nutritional diseases, the care of eggs to maintain their quality, and feeding and management practices that affect egg quality. Mr. Neff, who lectured twice, spoke upon the present poultry situation and outlook, and the sources of farm income in Greene County.

A poultry clinic in charge of Mr. Burbanck, representative of The George H. Lee Co., Omaha, Neb., took place between 2 and 3 o'clock. The evening program included a lecture by Mr. Neff on the subject, "The Future of the Poultry Industry in Ohio," and an illustrated lecture by Prof. Cray, a film strip showing factors limiting success with poultry.

FELLOW-WORKERS HONOR XENIAN

JOHN W. GARDNER, SR., 824 N. Detroit St., who was retired from active service as a telegraph operator on the Pennsylvania Railroad February 1, was recently honored at Cincinnati when he was presented a Morris chair, reading lamp and smoking stand by a group of his friends as a token of the esteem in which he is held by fellow-employees.

At the time of his retirement Mr. Gardner was placed on the honor roll of the railroad. He had a record of fifty-one years and six months' service and on February 23 was presented a fifty-year service button by R. C. Barnard, general agent and superintendent at Cincinnati.

Mr. Gardner was born at Clarksville January 30, 1862 and after leaving school there entered the service of the old C. and M. V. Railroad on October 1, 1879. With the exception of a short period he has been in continuous service until the time he was placed on the honor roll.

7:30 p. m. Evening worship, "Death in the Pot."

The first week of our revival was a very successful effort. Large crowds featured each evening's worship. We enter the second week's effort with prayers to our Lord for a visitation from on high. The pastor is preaching very acceptably each evening. The deacons are to take a much more active interest this week.

Each member is asked to give an extra offering in an effort to raise some money to apply on the delinquent account to the janitor. Along with your regular contribution to the expenses of the church let us not forget this effort and give as largely as is possible for you to do so.

The pastor has put some Easter offering booklets in the hands of the membership asking them to return them on Easter Sunday in an effort to help catch up in the pastor's salary which is considerably in the arrears. Your cooperation is asked in this matter.

Rev. A. Turner, pastor of First A. M. E. Church will preach for the younger people Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. His choir will furnish the music. We are expecting a large gathering to hear this great preacher.

The place of the meeting of the Missionary Society Thursday afternoon will be announced in The Informer.

PUZZLERS MEET

Life's most embarrassing moment for the National Puzzlers' League arrived during its convention in New York the other day. Having considered the cross-word puzzle somewhat beneath their notice, the officials nevertheless unbent enough to arrange a contest to which the public was invited. In the play-off puzzle belonged words to fit these definitions: "Sicilian shepherd murdered by Polyphemus for love of Galatea" and "Builder of the Great Pyramid." The two words, "Akis" and "Khufu," crossed at the letter "k," only the three finalists, all members of the League, with one accord spelled the first name "Akis." When the judges said nobody had won, the contestants protested and the concoctor of the puzzle defended himself by quoting a certain translation of Homer as his authority.

The Puzzlers' League should say, and rightly, that it was their own fault for trying to drum up popular interest in more complicated diversions by means of the contest. A puzzle is defined as "a toy, contrivance, question or problem designed for testing ingenuity" and "ingenuity" may be variously high intelligence, genius, talent, sagacity, skill, cleverness, quickness and acuteness.

This imposing array of qualifications is really more than the average worker of cross-word puzzles would venture to boast of possessing. Wide reading, a retentive memory and an alert brain are enough for him, and when he isn't in a contest, it's fair to keep a dictionary at his elbow.

The Puzzlers' League should not be too contemptuous of the cross-word puzzle, however. If the contestants had used a little less ingenuity and a little more common sense, provided they were sure of the spelling of "Khufu," they would have taken a chance on spelling "Akis" with a "k." The main virtue in any test of ingenuity is to keep the mind active and useful for the more practical purposes of life.

LAUDABLE SENTIMENT

The "debunkers" of American tradition are not themselves omniscient or infallible. They, too, are capable of a lot of bunk, as the Oklahoma Education Association proves when it sets its lance and tilts against Stephen Decatur's immortal toast concluding with these words: "Our Country, right or wrong." The Association thinks that the sentiment therein expressed inculcates an undesirable doctrine in the mind of Young America. Consequently it would substitute the words: "Our Country, to right the wrong." Shades of Andrew Jackson!

The Oklahoma Education Association presumably is not aware that other attempts have been made through the years since 1816 to improve upon Stephen Decatur's gallant words. What schoolboy can recall one of them? John J. Crittenden tried this one on the House in 1846: "I hope to find my country in the right; however, I will stand by her, right or wrong." Carl Schurz tried again in the Senate in 1872: "Our Country, right or wrong! When right, to be kept right; when wrong, to be set right." These variations have passed out of currency. While Decatur's virile words still ring in American ears.

Why? Simply because the latter express a universal and laudable sentiment. A nation that does not stick by its country when it is wrong will not long have a country to stand by when it is right. The objections commonly raised to Decatur's words spring from a misunderstanding of their exact implication. Germany used to cut into the edge of its coins: "Gott Mit Uns." Outsiders took this as a boast. As a matter of fact it was a prayer, as every German as thoroughly understood as Americans understand the significance of the inscription on their coins: "In God We Trust."

As a motto for the Oklahoma Education Association, as well as for debunkers in general, a "debunked" version of David Crockett's well known apothegm might be suggested: "Be sure you are right, before you go ahead."

THE INDIAN OFFERS HIS BLANKET

An Indian does best the thing he most enjoys doing. After nearly a century of more or less ineffectual attempts to fit the Indian into the Anglo-Saxon structure of America, the discovery of this obvious truism by the Bureau of Indian Affairs now promises a measure of relief to the Indian problem. Belated as it is, the tendency of the Government to consider the Indian question more as an economic than a social challenge deserves commendation.

"We are endeavoring to build on the things Indians themselves have," declared Mr. Charles J. Rhoads, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, recently. "Our goal is to adopt the modern ideal of giving as much of the best of our civilization as the Indian can adopt without violating his many fine racial characteristics."

This would indicate that the old plan of dominance and assimilation, once recommended by the Department of the Interior toward its Indian wards, is being put aside by the two Quaker gentlemen who are today piloting the Indian bureau for more humane and workable methods of co-operation and economic readjustments.

With the Indian Tribal Arts Exposition bringing to eastern cities impressive displays of native American arts and crafts, the Indian's value to the United States and to the world as an independent artist and craftsman can hardly fail to gain wide recognition, and in doing so point to at least one logical way for red man and the white man to meet on a mutually helpful basis, the one as a producer, the other as a buyer.

Unquestionably the blanket Indian is passing. He is passing because he has sold his blanket to a white man. Likewise, aluminum utensils are replacing the traditional pottery in many pueblo homes—because the tourists are buying the pottery. The Navajo's silver bracelet and concho belt and turquoise necklace now adorn his person—only until a buyer appears. Even the beaded vest and the feathered headdress of the plains tribes, after doing duty at ceremonial dances, find a market outside the reservations.

What, then, becomes of the picturesque Indian of romance and tradition, after he has sold his treasures? Does he bemoan his loss and declare, alas, that the white man has stripped him of the last little of his possessions? Not so. In the lee of a mud-covered hogan the squaw turns back to her crude loom, the silversmith squats at his primitive anvil, the turquoise cutter resumes his polishing. In the shadow of a pueblo the pottery maker fires more clay, the bead worker strings more beads, the fashioner of headdresses dyes more feathers. And all hands have a few more necessities, a few more luxuries even, while, all unknowingly, perhaps, the tendency grows to respond less reluctantly to the increasing interdependence with the white race. And fortunately as a check to cheap commercialization of the Indian, a growing appreciation of his art operates to keep him close to his sources. For the more authentic that art, the more valuable it is.

The Indian offers his blanket, and, lo! it comes back to him multiplied many times. — Christian Science Monitor.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Manhattan Tableaux, Deep Winter: The stony and bleak desolation of pent-houses, denuded of all but the hardiest plants, summery furniture stowed away with summery gayeties. . . . Frigid butlers venturing upon the terraces, viewed from higher windows; frigid butlers with the tails of their service coats blowing; frigid butlers doubtless with ice rapidly coating their sideburns. . . . Frigid butlers who dash hot water from pails up on the ice-coated floors. . . . And peck meditatively at old cigarette burns in dull green end tables which were once bright green.

(Note for inquisitive souls: Pent-houses, they tell me, were unheard-of until five or six years ago, when tenants chanced to explore the servants' quarters, until that time situated in modest little roof-bungalows. The adventurous tenants discovered that the servants lived very attractively up there, what with the facilities for tiny gardens, plenty of view and fresh air and so on. Thus the pent-house boom began; now they are the most expensive apartment locations in a building. But it was hard on the servants, who have been moved to the basement.)

A COLUMNIST TAKES A WALK

The Grand Concourse, at dusk. . . . A strange, suburban street, full of the town's unplumbed, unexplored reality. . . . Here lives New York, the city scorned of the Broadway gossip writers but the city most of them were born in. . . . A wide, thriving parkway, lined with bright, teeming apartment houses. . . . Names like Vista Court and Venetian Gardens and Chateau Belle Air. . . . With names like Stein and McCarthy and Ganz and Walker and Schmidt in the bell-cards of the foyers.

Here, ladies and gentlemen, is the end of a dream—an international and a thoroughly American dream at once—here is the goal, the objective of the dusky and the bright and the hopeful faces which peer from emigrant decks of incoming steamers toward Ellis Island. The Goal? . . . Well, rather the gigantic midway through which the lucky and the talented and the merely greedy pass on the way to Park avenue. . . . And after they've reached the part of New York which stands for the town in the minds of most of those who write and read about it, they have lost without knowing it, something of the quality of veritable New York.

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

An executive of a prominent movie concern called a writer into conference the other day and demanded "a sort of Greta Garbo story written so that a new star on the order of Joan Blondell could play in it." . . . The writer is still confused, and may never recover.

SCOUT TRAINING IS GOOD CURE FOR BREAKING BULLYING HABIT

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

If a neighbor's boy twelve years old or over is a bully toward your children who are younger and weaker than he is, you have no easy problem. However much you would like to discipline that bully you will not, if you are wise, try to do so. Neither will you tell his parents how he should be disciplined. You will be more practical and adopt, without approaching the matter at a time just after the boy has annoyed your children, without connecting the suggestion with the boy's behavior, tell his parents of the opportunity he has to join the Boy Scouts, what good fun the Scouts afford a boy and what useful things a Boy Scout can learn.

Some girls, too, are bullies. Girl Scouts for them, or the Camp Fire Girls. In some communities there are such organizations as the Cubs for younger boys and The Bluebirds for younger girls. Also there are clubs particularly for boys run by the Young Men's Christian Association, Young Men's Hebrew Association, and the Knights of Columbus. In addition are other similar clubs for boys and for girls by local churches.

Of course the bully may be your boy or mine, though we parents are not very likely to recognize the fact.

Scouts and similar organizations not only offer an opportunity to salvage the bully but, better still, to keep boys and girls from becoming bullies.

Any activity which assembles a number of these boys or girls for common purposes in terms of lofty, useful ideals, leads them to desire to be likable social creatures. They learn that selfishness is disapproved by the group, that the spirit of "after you" is approved, and that reasonable humility and consideration for the rights of others wins favor for a Scout. Sportsmanship, which is the opposite of bullying, is put foremost.

I can testify to the splendid influence scouting had on my oldest boy now in college, who along with scouting, had been a club member in the Y. M. C. A. His younger brother is impatiently awaiting the time when he also can be a Boy Scout.

A little while ago while lecturing in Wilmington, Del., I visited the Y. M. C. A. building there and discovered that whereas most such buildings are planned for men, this one was made especially for boys from 9 to 14; that, moreover, the whole program put boys first. I believe the Wilmington Y is on the right track. What do you think about it.

ALL of US By MARSHALL MASLIN

Why Be Bored?
How Can You Be Bored?
In This World, at This Time?

The young man was bored. . . . So bored. . . . So weary of this world and its ideas and its dreams and the people around him. . . . He was so bored. . . . How do I know? Well, I saw him, didn't I? I saw him Doing His Stuff. He might have been pretending? We'll perhaps he was. Some young fellows are good at that sort of thing.

Their act is to be intensely interesting, but vague and indifferently and bored outside. But not this young fellow. I'm sure. I watched him closely for fifteen minutes and he didn't show a sign of life. He wasn't a window dummy, I know, because I saw him light a cigarette and I saw him flick the ash negligently away. I saw him look at a pretty girl who passed and check her over carefully from her young man's eyes to her pet little hat and dismiss her forever from his princely consideration.

He looked at me, too, and adjusted his necktie precisely. . . . and forgot all about me. But, of course, I hadn't expected him to see me. He was in his early thirties, and I'm in my early-late thirties, so to him—to that exquisite, idling, bored young man—I'm just a gray-bearded ancient, tottering to the grave. He knew all about me and was wasting no time. . . . I understand; so, there's no personal feeling in this, YOU must understand.

But how did he get that Way, that's what I DON'T understand. Why should any young man be bored in this exciting century? Or any young woman? Or any old man? Or any old woman?

There's life, there's blood coursing through the body, there's energy, there's energy, there's energy, there's much that's going on. The earth's rolling through space, and the sun's coming up, and the sun's going down. And rain is falling and seasons are changing and the dew's on the grass and birds hop from twig to twig and a dog wags his tail and a rooster makes a great how-de-do!

And a baby's born and a mother weeps for joy and a young father feels terribly solemn and glad. There's grief and there's joy, there's ugliness and beauty and struggle and glamour, and there's that mysterious human spirit of which we talk so much and know so little.

And right in the heart of all this is that bored young man who has been everywhere and seen everything and thinks he has drunk life to the last insipid, luke-warm drop.

Here, in this year, in this country, in this most exciting period of the world's history—he is BORED. In all this excitement, this change, this struggle, this suffering, this movement of civilization, he thinks there's nothing for a fellow to do. He could be exultant, he could despair, he could grieve his heart out, he could set his chin and join the stalwart battalion of men and women who are fighting to set things right again.

But, no! He's weary, he's indifferent, he's bored! And for the puzzled life of me, I can't understand him—can you?

Classifies Headaches

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Headaches can be divided up many ways. And have been so classified by different doctors.

There are two main kinds of headaches that suggest themselves to everybody.

One is the acute headache and the other the chronic or recurrent headache.

The cause of the acute headache is usually easy to discover. It may be the beginning of a cold in the head, and be accompanied by fever and malaise. In fact, a headache is likely to accompany the onset of any acute disease or acute infection.

The acute headache may be the result of indiscretions in eating and, of course, especially in drinking.

And certainly may be the result of fatigue. There is such a thing as "shopping headache" in women, and "conference headache" in men, headaches which come on in the evening of a hard day of excessive concentration and activity. One physician thinks these are due to accumulation of acid substances in the body. He recommends the lady shopper to combat this by drinking a glass of orange juice frequently during her work.

The chronic headaches are more puzzling and almost as numerous. There are several classes of them also.

Headaches due to organic disease must always be mentioned. Such, for instance, is the headache caused by brain tumor. A tumor growing inside the skull naturally causes intolerable headache. But these are rare, compared to all the other headaches. In fact, in a study of more than 300 successive chronic headaches in a clinic, I did not encounter a single case of brain tumor.

Headache due to high blood pressure is somewhat more common. But all the organic headaches together make up less than one per cent of chronic headaches.

Reflex headaches are common. These are headaches caused by a spot of irritation somewhere in the head—eye strain, infected sinuses in the nose, infected and sometimes impacted teeth. The pain begins at the point of irritation or infection and spreads like an electric charge all over the head. They are often called neuralgic headaches.

Migraine or sick headache belongs in a class by itself. It is the most common form of recurrent or periodical headache. It is, in fact, one of most common of human afflictions. We will devote one or two special articles to it this week.

All other chronic headaches, in my opinion, are nervous in origin—in fact, are neuroses. Many different forms are described; one is the kind associated with nodules in the neck, but on close analysis they all betray themselves as neurotic in origin. They also deserve a special article. Over half of all chronic, periodical or recurrent headaches are either migraine or neurosis.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendinging can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendinging, in care of this paper, or Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Live Happily Together

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read 'Living and Loving' every night and often read about stepmothers. Now I am a stepmother at the age of 27. I have a stepson 20 years old, a stepdaughter 15, and a little girl of my own. I am expecting another baby in a short time, and both of my stepchildren are very thoughtful of me."

"My husband is 19 years older than I, but we get along just fine. He is just like a young man because he likes to go places and he does not like to go unless I am with him."

"My stepchildren and I get along just fine because we understand each other. She calls me mother, so I try to be a good mother to her."

"I do not think that 19 years between my husband and my age makes any difference. We are both happy. I hope some other stepmother may see this and know that there are some stepmothers who get along very nicely. V. L. M."

A woman friend used to say that if there is a seat higher in heaven than that reserved for an own mother, it should be saved for a good stepmother. You deserve that seat, my dear, and your stepchildren ought to share it with you. It is heartening to know that there is a family like yours, happy, contented and understanding one another. Long may you be happy together!

"MY DEAR MISS LEE: I should say it is not safe for any girl to marry a man she knows drinks to excess. She certainly should give it some thought and not bring a lot of unnecessary trouble into her life. You can't convert a drinking man, no matter how hard you try. It is degrading for the wife and children."

"A man who says he will kill himself if the girl won't marry him is not worth wasting time over. A if it you try."

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: My sister and I are both in love with the same man. He has not shown any preference. We both have had many dates with him."

"This has been going on for several months and my sister and I are becoming very antagonistic. Please, dear Virginia Lee, advise me soon what you think would be the best plan to follow. F. A. B."

Have a serious talk with your sister. Decide that no matter what occurs you will not let this man come between you. No man is worth the loss of companionship that a break between you would mean.

He may eventually not marry either of you, you know. Play fair with one another, and make up your minds that whichever one he finally chooses—if either—the other will be a good sister-in-law to him and wish him joy.

This is not an easy thing to do, I know. It's very hard and takes plenty of character, but you can do it if you try.

Says To Cultivate Hand Grace

By GLADYS GLAD

Walter Thornton, whose chief occupation is supplying models for artists, photographers and like individuals, says that there isn't one beautiful girl in a thousand who has really graceful hands. He's a positive fiend about hand expressiveness. And he deplores the fact that women as a whole give so little thought to this aspect of hand beauty.

It's true that the average woman thinks more about the smoothness of her hands than about their gracefulness. Yet no matter how soft and well-formed they are, no hands can be truly charming if they are awkward and gauche. There is little to admire about hands that are used in a jerky, clumsy, spasmodic fashion, or that are continually fidgeting, twitching and fussing about.

If your hands are the type that are continually fidgeting and twitching, you can correct such movements very simply. Just get into the habit of relaxing your hands frequently. Force them to lie at peace in your lap whenever the urge to fuss comes upon you, and you'll regard yourself of the habit of fidgeting.

But if your hands are the type that are stiff and awkward in their movements, you'll have to do more than that. For stiff, clumsy gestures result from lazy muscles. Firm, strong muscles mean grace and nimbleness. And exercise is necessary to make muscles strong and flexible.

The hand exercises described in my article on "Care of the Hands and Nails" are excellent for giving grace and ease to the movements of the hands. But the best exercise of all is that old hand-flapping one. For the flexibility of the wrists is largely responsible for the grace of the hand gestures. And this exercise is unbeatable for strengthening the wrists and giving them flexibility. Simply relax the hands, holding them away from the body, and with the elbows bent loosely, flap them briskly up and down from the wrists.

PUZZLERS MEET

Life's most embarrassing moment for the National Puzzlers' League arrived during its convention in New York the other day. Having considered the cross-word puzzle somewhat beneath their notice, the officials nevertheless unbent enough to arrange a contest to which the public was invited. In the play-off puzzle belonged words to fit these definitions: "Sicilian shepherd murdered by Polyphemus for love of Galatea" and "Builder of the Great Pyramid." The two words, "Akis" and "Khufu," crossed at the letter "k," only the three finalists, all members of the League, with one accord spelled the first name "Akis." When the judges said nobody had won, the contestants protested and the concoctor of the puzzle defended himself by quoting a certain translation of Homer as his authority.

The Puzzlers' League should say, and rightly, that it was their own fault for trying to drum up popular interest in more complicated diversions by means of the contest. A puzzle is defined as "a toy, contrivance, question or problem designed for testing ingenuity," and "ingenuity" may be variously high intelligence, genius, talent, sagacity, skill, cleverness, quickness and acuteness.

This imposing array of qualifications is really more than the average worker of cross-word puzzles would venture to boast of possessing. Wide reading, a retentive memory and an alert brain are enough for him, and when he isn't in a contest, it's fair to keep a dictionary at his elbow.

The Puzzlers' League should not be too contemptuous of the cross-word puzzle, however. If the contestants had used a little less ingenuity and a little more common sense, provided they were sure of the spelling of "Khufu," they would have taken a chance on spelling "Akis" with a "k." The main virtue in any test of ingenuity is to keep the mind active and useful for the more practical purposes of life.

LAUDABLE SENTIMENT

The "debunkers" of American tradition are not themselves omniscient or infallible. They, too, are capable of a lot of bunk, as the Oklahoma Education Association proves when it sets its lance and tilts against Stephen Decatur's immortal toast concluding with these words: "Our Country, right or wrong." The Association thinks that the sentiment therein expressed inculcates an undesirable doctrine in the mind of Young America. Consequently it would substitute the words: "Our Country, to right the wrong." Shades of Andrew Jackson!

The Oklahoma Education Association probably is not aware that other attempts have been made through the years since 1816 to improve upon Stephen Decatur's gallant words. What schoolboy can recall one of them? John J. Crittenden tried this one on the House in 1846: "I hope to find my country in the right; however, I will stand by her, right or wrong." Carl Schurz tried again in the Senate in 1872: "Our Country, right or wrong! When right, to be kept right; when wrong, to be set right." These variations have passed out of currency. While Decatur's virile words still ring in American ears.

Why? Simply because the latter express a universal and laudable sentiment. A nation that does not stick by its country when it is wrong will not long have a country to stand by when it is right. The objections commonly raised to Decatur's words spring from a misunderstanding of their exact implication. Germany used to cut into the edge of its coins: "Gott Mit Uns." Outsiders took this as a boast. As a matter of fact it was a prayer, as every German as thoroughly understood as Americans understand the significance of the inscription on their coins: "In God We Trust."

As a motto for the Oklahoma Education Association, as well as for debunkers in general, a "debunked" version of David Crockett's well known apothegm might be suggested: "Be sure you are right, before you go ahead."

THE INDIAN OFFERS HIS BLANKET

An Indian does best the thing he most enjoys doing. After nearly a century of more or less ineffectual attempts to fit the Indian into the Anglo-Saxon structure of America, the discovery of this obvious truism by the Bureau of Indian Affairs now promises a measure of relief to the Indian problem. Belated as it is, the tendency of the Government to consider the Indian question more as an economic than a social challenge deserves commendation.

"We are endeavoring to build on the things Indians themselves have," declared Mr. Charles J. Rhoads, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, recently. "Our goal is to adopt the modern ideal of giving as much of the best of our civilization as the Indian can adopt without violating his many fine racial characteristics."

This would indicate that the old plan of dominance and assimilation, once recommended by the Department of the Interior toward its Indian wards, is being put aside by the two Quaker gentlemen who are today plotting the Indian bureau for more humane and workable methods of co-operation and economic readjustments.

With the Indian Tribal Arts Exposition bringing to eastern cities impressive displays of native American arts and crafts, the Indian's value to the United States and to the world as an independent artist and craftsman can hardly fail to gain wide recognition, and in doing so point to at least one logical way for red man and the white man to meet on a mutually helpful basis, the one as a producer, the other as a buyer.

Unquestionably the blanket Indian is passing. He is passing because he has sold his blanket to a white man. Likewise, aluminum utensils are replacing the traditional pottery in many pueblo homes—because the tourists are buying the pottery. The Navajo's silver bracelet and concho belt and turquoise necklace now adorn his person—only until a buyer appears. Even the beaded vest and the feathered headress of the plains tribes, after doing duty at ceremonial dances, find a market outside the reservations.

What, then, becomes of the picturesque Indian of romance and tradition, after he has sold his treasures? Does he bemoan his loss and declare, alas, that the white man has stripped him of the last little of his possessions? Not so. In the lee of a mud-covered Hogan the squaw turns back to her crude loom, the silversmith squats at his primitive anvil, the turquoise cutter resumes his polishing. In the shadow of a pueblo the pottery maker fires more clay, the bead worker strings more beads, the fashioner of headdresses dyes more feathers. And all hands have a few more necessities, a few more luxuries even, while, all unknowingly, perhaps, the tendency grows to respond less reluctantly to the increasing interdependence with the white race. And fortunately as a check to cheap commercialization of the Indian, a growing appreciation of his art operates to keep him close to his sources. For the more authentic that art, the more valuable it is.

The Indian offers his blanket, and, lo! it comes back to him multiplied many times. — Christian Science Monitor.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Manhattan Tableaux, Deep Winter: The stony and bleak desolation of pent-houses, denuded of all but the hardest plants, summery furniture stowed away with summery gayeties. . . . Frigid butlers venturing upon the terraces, viewed from higher windows; frigid butlers with the tails of their service coats blowing; frigid butlers doubtless with ice rapidly coating their sideburns. . . . Frigid butlers who dash hot water from pails up on the ice-coated floors. . . . And peck meditatively at old cigarette butts in dull green end tables which were once bright green.

(Note for inquisitive souls: Pent-houses, they tell me, were unheard-of until five or six years ago, when tenants chanced to explore the servants' quarters, until that time situated in modest little roof-bungalows. The adventurous tenants discovered that the servants lived very attractively up there, what with the facilities for tiny gardens, plenty of view and fresh air and so on. Thus the pent-house boom began; now they are the most expensive apartment locations in a building. But it was hard on the servants, who have been moved to the basement.)

A COLUMNIST TAKES A WALK

The Grand Concourse, at dusk. . . . A strange, suburban street, full of the town's unplumbed, unpublished reality. . . . Here lives New York, the city scorned of the Broadway gossip writers but the city most of them were born in. . . . A wide, thriving parkway, lined with bright, teeming apartment houses. . . . Names like Vista Court and Venetian Gardens and Chateau Belle Air. . . . With names like Stein and McCarthy and Ganzel and Walker and Schmidt in the bell-cards of the foyers.

Here, ladies and gentlemen, is the end of a dream—an international and a thoroughly American dream at once—here is the goal, the objective of the dusky and the bright and the hopeful faces which peer from emigrant decks of incoming steamers toward Ellis Island.

The goal? . . . Well, rather the gigantic midway through which the lucky and the talented and the merely greedy pass on the way to Park avenue. . . . And after they've reached the part of New York which stands for the town in the minds of most of those who write and read about it, they have lost without knowing it, something of the quality of veritable New York.

SCOUT TRAINING IS GOOD CURE FOR BREAKING BULLYING HABIT

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

If a neighbor's boy twelve years old or over is a bully toward your children who are younger and weaker than he is, you have no easy problem. However much you would like to discipline that bully you will not, if you are wise, try to do so. Neither will you tell his parents how he should be disciplined. You will be more practical and adroit. Without approaching the matter at a time just after the boy has annoyed your children, without connecting the suggestion with the boy's behavior, tell his parents of the opportunity he has to join the Boy Scouts, what good fun the Scouts afford a boy and what useful things a Boy Scout can learn.

Some girls, too, are bullies. Girl Scouts for them, or the Camp Fire Girls. In some communities there are such organizations as the Cubs for younger boys and The Bluebirds for younger girls. Also there are clubs particularly for boys run by the Young Men's Christian Association, Young Men's Hebrew Association, and the Knights of Columbus. In addition are other similar clubs for boys and for girls by local churches.

Of course the bully may be your boy or mine, though we parents are not very likely to recognize the fact.

Scouts and similar organizations not only offer an opportunity to salvage the bully but, better still, to keep boys and girls from becoming bullies.

Any activity which assembles a number of these boys or girls for common purposes in terms of lofty, useful ideals, leads them to desire to be likable social creatures. They learn that selfishness is disapproved by the group, that the spirit of "after you" is approved, and that reasonable humility and consideration for the rights of others wins favor for a Scout. Sportsmanship, which is the opposite of bullying, is put foremost. I can testify to the splendid influence scouting had on my oldest boy now in college, who along with scouting, had been a club member in the Y. M. C. A. His younger brother is impatiently awaiting the time when he also can be a Boy Scout.

A little while ago while lecturing in Wilmington, Del., I visited the Y. M. C. A. building there and discovered that whereas most such buildings are planned for men, this one was made especially for boys from 9 to 14; that, moreover, the whole program put boys first. I believe the Wilmington Y is on the right track. What do you think about it.

Classifies Headaches

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Headaches can be divided up many ways. And have been so classified by different doctors.

There are two main kinds of headaches that suggest themselves to every body.

One is the acute headache and the other the chronic or recurrent headache.

The cause of the acute headache is usually easy to discover. It may be the beginning of a cold in the head, and be accompanied by fever and malaise. In fact, a headache is likely to accompany the onset of any acute disease or acute infection.

The acute headache may be the result of indiscretions in eating and, of course, especially in drinking.

And certainly may be the result of fatigue. There is such a thing as "shopping headache" in women, and "conference headache" in men, headaches which come on in the evening of a hard day of excessive concentration and activity. One physician thinks these are due to accumulation of acid substances in the body. He recommends the lady shopper to combat this by drinking a glass of orange juice frequently during her work.

The chronic headaches are more puzzling and almost as numerous. There are several classes of them also.

Headaches due to organic disease must always be mentioned. Such, for instance, is the headache caused by brain tumor. A tumor growing inside the skull naturally causes intolerable headache. But these are rare, compared to all the other headaches. In fact, in a study of more than 300 successive chronic headaches in a clinic, I did not encounter a single case of brain tumor.

Headache due to high blood pressure is somewhat more common. But all the organic headaches together make up less than one per cent of chronic headaches.

Reflex headaches are common. These are headaches caused by a spot of irritation somewhere in the head—eye strain, infected sinuses in the nose, infected and sometimes impacted teeth. The pain begins at the point of irritation or infection and spreads like an electric charge all over the head. They are often called neuralgic headaches.

Migraine or sick headache belongs in a class by itself. It is the most common form of recurrent or periodical headache. It is, in fact, one of most common of human afflictions. We will devote one of two special articles to it this week.

All other chronic headaches, in my opinion, are nervous in origin—in fact, are neurones. Many different forms are described; one is the kind associated with nodules in the neck, but on close analysis they all betray themselves as neurotic in origin. They also deserve a special article. Over half of all chronic, periodical or recurrent headaches are either migraine or neuritis.

Live Happily Together

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read 'Living and Loving' every night and often read about stepmothers. Now I am a stepmother at the age of 27. I have a stepson 20 years old, a stepdaughter aged 15, and a little girl of my own. I am expecting another baby in a short time, and both of my stepchildren are very thoughtful of me."

"My husband is 19 years older than I, but we get along just fine. He is just like a young man because he likes to go places and he does not like to go unless I am with him."

"My stepchildren and I get along just fine because we understand each other. She calls me mother, so I try to be a good mother to her."

"I do not think that 19 years between my husband and my age makes any difference. We are both happy. I hope some other stepmother may see this and know that there are some stepmothers who get along very nicely."

"A woman friend used to say that if there is a seat higher in heaven than that reserved for an own mother, it should be saved for a good stepmother. You deserve that seat, my dear, and your stepchildren ought to share it with you. It is heartening to know that there is a family like yours, happy, contented and understanding one another. Long may you be happy together!"

"MY DEAR MISS LEE: I should say it is not safe for any girl to marry a man she knows drinks to excess. She certainly should give it some thought and not bring a lot of unnecessary trouble into her life. 'You can't convert a drinking man, no matter how hard you try. It is degrading for the wife and children. 'A man who says he will kill himself if the girl won't marry him is not worth wasting time over. A girl should not let her heart rule her head. B. K."

No one should let the heart rule the head, I suppose. But that is a rule much more easily made than followed. The heart is a pretty turbulent organ when it goes on a rampage, you know.

S. A. Jr.'s wife is working and he is "laboring on farms here and there trying to keep alive." She appears to be indifferent to him, he "is crazy" about her and wants to know how he can win her as he "just cannot go on living without her."

I presume the trouble is that you cannot earn enough to keep a home going and she feels as long as she has to work away from you she might as well have a good time. S. A. Jr. Could you manage to rent a small farm and make a home for your wife if she promises to come back to you? She may be disappointed in you, that you have not been able to make a living, and thinks that you are no good. Your job is to make her see that you are and that you can maintain a home.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: My sister and I are both in love with the same man. He has not shown any preference. We both have had many dates with him."

"This has been going on for several months and my sister and I are becoming very antagonistic. Please, dear Virginia Lee, advise me soon what you think would be the best plan to follow."

Have a serious talk with your sister. Decide that no matter what occurs you will not let this man come between you. No man is worth the loss of companionship that a break between you would mean.

He may eventually not marry either of you, you know. Play fair with one another, and make up your minds that whichever one he finally chooses—if either—the other will be a good sister-in-law to him and wish him joy.

This is not an easy thing to do, I know. It's very hard and takes plenty of character, but you can do it if you try.

Says To Cultivate Hand Grace

By GLADYS GLAD

Walter Thornton, whose chief occupation is supplying models for artists, photographers and like individuals, says that there isn't one beautiful girl in a thousand who has really graceful hands. He's a positive fiend about hand expressiveness. And he deplores the fact that women as a whole give so little thought to this aspect of hand beauty.

It's true that the average woman thinks more about the smoothness of her hands than about their expressiveness. Yet no matter how soft and well-formed they are, no hands can be truly charming if they are awkward and inflexible.

If your hands are the type that are continually fidgeting and twitching, you can correct such movements very simply. Just get into the habit of relaxing your hands frequently. Force them to lie at peace in your lap whenever the urge to fuss comes upon you, and you'll break yourself of the habit of fidgeting.

But if your hands are the type that are stiff and awkward in their movements, you'll have to do more than that. For stiff, clumsy gestures result from lazy muscles. Firm, strong muscles mean grace and nimbleness. And exercise is necessary to make muscles strong and flexible.

The hand exercises described in my article on "Care of the Hands and Nails" are excellent for giving grace and ease to the movements of the hands. But the best exercise of all is that old hand-flapping one. For the flexibility of the wrists is largely responsible for the grace of the hand gestures. And this exercise is unbeatable for strengthening the wrists and giving them flexibility. Simply relax the hands, holding them away from the body, and with the elbows bent loosely, flap them briskly up and down from the wrists.

Budgets For The Entire Family

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Budget Tests

There are certain tests which may be applied to any method of recording family expenditures. These may be grouped under three heads:

The budget must be simple and clear and kept with as little outlay of time and energy as possible.

It must show the facts of expenditures and the general financial condition of the family at any time. At the end of the month there should be provision for some way of getting a summary view of income and expenditures for the year up to date, in such a manner that the amounts actually spent for the various classes of expenditures can readily be compared with the estimates or plan for expenditures.

The record must be detailed enough to make it possible to get a clear picture of what the family spent its money for during the year.

Financial Terms Everyone Should Know

FACTS AND FANCIES

Amethyst's Legend

The name amethyst, February's birthstone, comes directly from the Greek "amethystos," and means, literally, "not drunken." According to the ancient legend, the stone was created by the wine-god, Bacchus, who one day pursued a lovely maiden through the forest of the gods, and overtook her, only to find that Diana had converted the nymph to a pure white crystal to protect her from his wooing. Bacchus was so touched that he poured a libation of his own purple wine over the transformed maiden, consecrating the amethyst thus formed as perpetual charm against the fury of his own pagan delights.

Favorites Survive First Round Of Tourney

ROSS, CEDARVILLE, YELLOW SPRINGS AND JEFFERSON WIN

Jefferson-Bellbrook Game Provides Thrills In First Day's Play; Last Minute Basket Yields One-Point Win; Ross Scores High

SURVIVING their first round games Friday afternoon and night, Cedarville, Ross, Jefferson and Bryan High of Yellow Springs advanced to the semi-finals of the eighteenth annual Greene County Class B basketball tournament being staged at the new Bath High School gymnasium in Osborn.

Ross and Cedarville were scheduled to meet at 2 o'clock with Jefferson playing Bryan at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the winners progressing to the tourney finals at 9 p. m.

Preliminary round contests Friday were devoid of upsets, unless the one point, 20 to 19 victory scored by Jefferson cagers over Bellbrook can be so classified. Other favorites came through triumphantly as expected. The champion Ross quintet, undefeated this season and favored to win its third straight county title, lived up to and exceeded expectations with a top-heavy 54 to 14 victory over Spring Valley. Cedarville eliminated Beaver Creek, 23 to 8, and Bryan basketballers put Jamestown out of circulation, 21 to 16.

The best game, from the standpoint of excitement, was reserved for the last on the opening day's program when Jefferson came from behind to eke out a triumph over Bellbrook by a margin of a solitary point. With only thirty seconds left to play, Earlley, Jefferson guard, looped in the winning basket. The garrison finish of Jefferson was a heart-breaker for Bellbrook, which had clung to a slender lead most of the game. Jefferson's quintet was trailing, 7 to 5, in the first period, 12 to 8 at the half, and 14 to 12 when the third quarter expired.

Gathering momentum as the contest progressed, the high-scoring Ross team won its eighteenth consecutive game, entombing Spring Valley under a basket-making land slide in the second game of the afternoon program. The defending county champs were ahead, 9 to 6 in the first stanza, expanded their lead to 19 to 8 at halftime, and extended it to 29 to 12 at the third quarter pole. Jerome Pittstick, rangy Ross forward, employed his height to sink thirteen field goals for twenty-six points. Howard Swaim, all-county Ross center, was content with fourteen points.

Cedarville, in whipping Beaver Creek by fifteen-point margin in the first tournament engagement, was required to stage a great reversal of form in the second half. Beaver, which did not win a game all season, made a gallant stand in the first half and was ahead by one point, 7 to 6, at the intermission.

After the rest period Cedarville rallied and forged into the lead, Beaver was behind by only three points 11 to 8, when the third quarter ended, but it went to pieces in the last period and the Orr-coached team collected an even dozen markers while holding Beaver pointlessly. Harris, center, tallied eleven points for Cedarville.

Continuing to exhibit the improved form it has shown in recent weeks, Bryan's quintet from Yellow Springs topped Jamestown by five points in the opening game of the evening session, although the beaten team matched the winners almost point for point for three-quarters of the contest. The score was tied at 6 to 6 in the first period. One point separated the rival quintets.

When it comes to toiling the seven-foot line on a basketball floor and looping foul shots through the mesh, Herbert Cummings, slim substitute forward on the champion Ross High School team, takes a back seat to no other player in Greene County court circles. Cummings must spend all of his spare moments practicing free throws, because he is accuracy personified.

For the second straight year, the Ross player finished first in a field of fifteen contestants Friday in the fourth annual free throw contest held in conjunction with the first day's play for the annual county basketball tournament at Osborn.

Stepping to the foul line, Cummings nonchalantly sank thirty out of thirty-five shots to outclass all of his competitors. Last year he won the contest with twenty-seven out of thirty.

Robert Smith, sub forward for Spring Valley, finished second to Cummings, with twenty-seven out of a possible thirty-five.

These two players earned the right to compete in the sectional free throw competition at Wilmington College next week-end as representatives from this county.

The foul shooting rivalry was sandwiched in between the tourney contests Friday.

Scores recorded by the other free throw entrants follow: Russell Wisecup, Cedarville, 25; Carl Brill, Beaver, 22; Charles Shiverdecker, Bellbrook, 22; Ray Smith, Spring Valley, 21; Robert Pittstick, Ross, 13; Lester Brewer, Bryan, 25; Kingsley Pogg, Bryan, 19; Dale Henry, Jamestown, 24; John Sharp, Jamestown, 19; Roy Linton, Jefferson, 20; Wendell Stuart, Jefferson, 20; Leon McHenry, Bellbrook, 22; Frank Ross, Bellbrook, 16.

MIAMISBURG BEATS FAIRVIEW AND TROY DEFEATED BY PIQUA

Ties Knot Standing In Miami Valley League

The curtain dropped on the 1932 Miami Valley League basketball race Friday night.

Miamisburg wound up in a tie with Sidney for second place by scoring a decisive 45 to 10 victory over Fairview at Dayton. Piqua sprang a surprise with a top-sided 30 to 11 triumph over Troy on the Piqua floor and finished in a tie with Xenia Central for the next place in the standing below Greenville, Sidney and the Burgers.

Dayton Fairview, admitted to membership in the league on a probationary basis, lost all of its six league contests.

A brilliant last-half rally enabled the Indians to almost triple the score on the Trojans. Troy was ahead, 10 to 9, at halftime, but John Campbell all-league guard had been dispossessed on personal fouls late in the second period and, deprived of his services, the Trojans collapsed in the last half, scoring only one point.

The Burgers won as they pleased over Fairview. They got away to an 18 to 2 lead in the first quarter and were ahead, 24 to 5, when the half ended. Lineups:

COURT RESTRAINS SON FROM EVICTING FATHER FROM HOME

A temporary injunction, granted in Common Pleas Court, prevents a son from carrying out an alleged threat to cause his 80-year-old father to be evicted from the family homestead, where he has lived for the last eighteen years.

The restraining order, averting a possible mortgage foreclosure action, was issued at the request of Frank Weaver, Bellbrook, who brought suit against his son, John Weaver, asking quiet of title to the property.

The father asserts that twelve years ago he was persuaded, against his will, to give the son a mortgage on the premises to secure payment of $1,200. He claims the son obtained it under the guise of it being a legal document necessary to satisfy his wife.

The father declares the mortgage was given for the sole purpose of preventing the son and wife from separating, with the understanding it would never be enforced, but used only to assure harmony between them.

The plaintiff sets forth that he owned the property for many years and that he and his children joined together and had the old home remodeled in 1914.

The father furnished the necessary materials and the children donated their services for the required labor, according to the petition. The aged man declares he has lived in the house since 1914 and from time to time, because of his advanced age, a son or daughter would live with him.

Claiming that the defendant never mentioned a claim on the property adverse to his own, from the date the mortgage was given, January 20, 1920, until recently, the father says the son now claims the mortgage is a valid lien on the premises.

He has demanded, the petition recites, that his father move out and turn the place over to him in order that he may remodel it into a duplex and collect rents.

The defendant threatens foreclosure proceedings, according to the father, who asked that his son be restrained from disposing of the mortgage or instituting action to evict him. Miller and Finney are the plaintiff's attorneys.

ROSS, CEDARVILLE, YELLOW SPRINGS AND JEFFERSON WIN

Jefferson—Bellbrook Game Provides Thrills In First Day's Play; Last Minute Basket Yields One-Point Win; Ross Scores High

Jack Dempsey, who is given no more than a "ghost of a chance" by his pals, the sport writers, to win back the heavyweight title, nevertheless continues to bask in the bright sun of public popularity. There you have a big problem of psychology, as is even admitted by the promoters of Dempsey's scheduled four-round exhibition at Dayton next Monday night, who say, as usual, but this time convincingly, that advance sales for Jack's appearance at Memorial Hall indicate the place will be crowded to the rafters.

The psychology problem, aforementioned, concerns the immense popularity of Dempsey has been able to sustain through the years since he lost the championship, and more particular on his present comeback tour.

The sustained popularity of Dempsey is attributed to several things, namely:

1.—He was the most spectacular fighter since the bare knuckle days and he always gave fight fans a return on their investment.

2.—He has a great faculty of being nice and obliging to everyone, and, like a politician, he never forgets a face.

3.—He never squawked about anything—even about the alleged long count of fourteen in Chicago.

4.—Then, too, he has never been out of the public prints, and his publicity has not been self-manufactured.

Arguments followed every big bout in which he engaged and the disputes lasted from one fight until he began training for another in his active days.

When he departed from the ring after the first round in Toledo, thinking that he had knocked out huge Jess Willard, a controversy raged in the press for months. It was claimed he had automatically lost the fight when he left the ring.

When Dempsey knocked out Fred Fulton in less than a minute of the first round, it was claimed that he sneaked in a punch on the poor old plasterer while the referee was parting them in a clinch.

In the sensational Firpo fight it was charged that Jack was helped back into the ring by a friendly newspaper man after the "Wild Bull" had knocked him clear out of the ring, and that he hit the big South American while he was technically down.

Jack Sharkey claimed that the punch which Dempsey knocked him out was a low blow, and he has been crying about it ever since, although the motion pictures showed that Dempsey's punch landed above the waist-line and Sharkey had his fists drawn up to his breast.

HERBERT CUMMINGS CLAIMS FREE THROW CONTEST AT OSBORN

Wins Second Year; Robert Smith Is Second

When it comes to toeling the seventeen-foot line on a basketball floor and looping foul shots through the mesh, Herbert Cummings, slim substitute forward on the champion Ross High School team, takes a back seat to no other player in Greene County court circles.

Herbert must spend all of his spare moments practicing free throws, because he is accuracy personified.

For the second straight year, the Ross player finished first in a field of fifteen contestants Friday in the fourth annual free throw contest held in conjunction with the first day's play for the annual county basketball tournament at Osborn.

Stepping to the foul line, Cummings nonchalantly sank thirty out of thirty-five shots to outclass all of his competitors. Last year he won the contest with twenty-seven out of thirty.

Robert Smith, sub forward for Spring Valley, finished second to Cummings, with twenty-seven out of a possible thirty-five.

These two players earned the right to compete in the Wilington free throw competition at Wilington College next weekend as representatives of this county.

The foul shooting rivalry was sandwiched in between the tourney contests Friday.

Scores recorded by the other free throw entrants follow:

Russell Wiscup, Cedarville, 25; Carl Brill, Beaver, 22; Charles Shiverdecker, Beaver, 22; Ray Smith, Spring Valley, 21; Robert Pittsick, Ross, 13; Lester Brewer, Bryan, 25; Kingsley Fogg, Bryan, 19; Dale Henry, Jamestown, 24; John Sharp, Jamestown, 19; Roy Linton, Jefferson, 23; Wendell Stuart, Jefferson, 20; Leon McHenry, Bellbrook, 22; Frank Ross, Bellbrook, 16.

ROSS LEADS

(BULLETIN)
Ross Twp. High cagers were leading Cedarville, 9 to 7, at the end of the first half of their semi-final county tournament game, first contest on the afternoon program, Saturday. Ross held a lead of 6 to 3 in the first quarter.

SURVIVING their first round games Friday afternoon and night, Cedarville, Ross, Jefferson and Bryan High of Yellow Springs advanced to the semi-finals of the eighteenth annual Greene County Class B basketball tournament being staged at the new Bath High School gymnasium in Osborn.

Ross and Cedarville were scheduled to meet at 2 o'clock with Jefferson playing Bryan at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the winners progressing to the tourney finals at 9 p. m.

Preliminary round contests Friday were devoid of upsets, unless the one point, 20 to 19 victory scored by Jefferson cagers over Bellbrook can be so classified. Other favorites came through triumphantly as expected. The champion Ross quintet, undefeated this season and favored to win its third straight county title, lived up to and exceeded expectations with a top-heavy 54 to 14 victory over Spring Valley.

Cedarville eliminated Beaver Creek, 23 to 8, and Bryan basketballers put Jamestown out of circulation, 21 to 16.

The best game, from the standpoint of excitement, was reserved for the last on the opening day's program when Jefferson came from behind to eke out a triumph over Bellbrook by a margin of a solitary point. With only thirty seconds left to play, Earley, Jefferson guard, looped in the winning basket. The garrison finish of Jefferson was a heart-breaker for Bellbrook, which had clung to a slender lead most of the game. Jefferson's quintet was trailing, 7 to 5, in the first period, 12 to 8 at the half, and 14 to 12 when the third quarter expired.

Gathering momentum as the contest progressed, the high-scoring Ross team won its eighteenth consecutive game, entombing Spring Valley under a basket-making land slide in the second game on the afternoon program. The defending county champs were ahead, 9 to 6 in the first stanza, expanded their lead to 19 to 8 at halftime, and extended it to 29 to 12 at the third-quarter pole. Jerome Pittsick, rangy Ross forward, employed his height to sink thirteen field goals for twenty-six points. Howard Swaim, all-county Ross center, was content with fourteen points.

Cedarville, in whipping Beaver Creek by fifteen-point margin in the first tournament engagement, was required to stage a great reversal of form in the second half. Beaver, which did not win a game all season, made a gallant stand in the first half and was ahead by one point, 7 to 6, at the intermission. After the rest period Cedarville rallied and forged into the lead. Beaver was behind by only three points 11 to 8, when the third quarter ended, but it went to pieces in the last period and the Ore-coached team collected an even dozen markers while holding Beaver pointless.

Continuing to exhibit the improved form it has shown in recent weeks, Bryan's quintet from Yellow Springs topped Jamestown by five points in the opener of the evening session, although the beaten team matched the winners almost point for point for three-quarters of the contest. The score was tied at 6 to 6 in the first period. One point separated the rival quintets.

Spelled the "tragic story involved in the corruption" existing in New York.

Here for a study of the local city manager plan of government, Seabury declared New York City's government should be reorganized through charter revision, creation of a small elected council to replace wasteful and politically controlled departments, and formation of a non-partisan group to support good government.

Reverting to the Tammany influence, which he blamed for making of many New York City department heads "market places for the sale of favors to the highest bidder," he declared:

"It drives public men whose instincts would lead them to speak out in protest against the corruption that has been revealed, to a sullen silence.

"They know the conditions are evil, but they fear to antagonize the power of Tammany Hall."

Many politicians, he said, holding public office, when "forced or given the occasions to rule adversely to Tammany Hall," soften their opposition so that "while the public will not regard them as pro-Tammany, Tammany Hall will not regard them as opposed to it."

Many saw a criticism of Governor Roosevelt in this passage, since Seabury in another part of his speech referred to the delay of the governor in removing Sheriff Thomas M. Parley, pointing out the evidence against Parley was produced before the committee last October, but action was not taken until Seabury himself placed formal charges before Roosevelt. His probe of New York City's government, asserted Seabury, revealed that there was a definite link between crime and racketeers and politics.

Seabury was to confer today with Mayor Russell Wilson, Henry Bentley, ex-mayor, and Charles P. Taft 2nd. All of these were active in reforming the Cincinnati city charter.

Mayor Wilson accepted an invitation from the committee of 1,000 in New York to address a public meeting there March 18. His subject will be the city manager system.

Back in Form Again

SIX WEEKS after Sullivan told that disappointed New York crowd he was too ill to fight Mitchell, the champion was virtually bankrupt. Boston friends, feeling sorry for him, arranged a benefit for him in the Music Hall in August. This netted him a neat sum. But his real friends made him save the money and go back to hard training.

So great an athlete was Sullivan that soon he was back in his old-time form, ready to fight.

THOUGH JOHN L. had opened a saloon in Boston, his friends saw to it that he spent more time doing roadwork than behind the bar. His first comeback bout was with "Professor" John M. Laffin, whom he defeated Nov. 10 in New York in three rounds. Then Alf Greenfield, champion of Great Britain, came to the United States and challenged John L. On Nov. 17 John L. kayoed Alf in two rounds in New York.

GREENFIELD challenged again and Sullivan kayoed him for a second time in the fourth round. This bout was in Boston, Jan. 12, 1885. A week later he met Paddy Ryan, the old champion, in a return bout in New York, but police stopped the fight in the first round. John L. was challenged by Jack Burke, Irish heavyweight, for a Chicago bout. Sullivan went to Mt. Clemens, Mich., to train. There he kayoed a holdup man.

MONDAY—Off to England.

Knocking out the bandit with a punch gave John L. great publicity. He found himself once more a hero. His five-round win over Burke added to his popularity. On Aug. 29, John L. defeated Dominick McCaffery in six rounds in Cincinnati. In training for these fights John L. used a new device. He invented a striking bag made of cow bladder, the first real punching bag.

DRUGGAN STARTED FOR PRISON TERM

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Forced to leave a hospital bed and board a train, Terry Druggan, the second of Chicago's "beer twins," was at last on his long-deferred journey to Leavenworth federal penitentiary today.

Together with a consignment of prisoners, the wealthy liquor baron was being escorted by heavily guarded officers to the prison, where he must serve two and one-half years for evading the income tax. His "beer twin," Frankie Lake, is already within Leavenworth's walls, doing time for a similar offense.

Druggan's removal from St. Luke's Hospital last night was carried out on orders of Federal Judge John P. Barnes after a government doctor had examined the gangster and pronounced his illness non-fatal. Druggan was forced to leave his hospital bed, put his clothes on and begin his journey to the prison.

COURT RESTRAINS SON FROM EVICTING FATHER FROM HOME

A temporary injunction, granted in Common Pleas Court, prevents a son from carrying out an alleged threat to cause his 80-year-old father to be evicted from the family homestead, where he has lived for the last eighteen years.

The restraining order, averting a possible mortgage foreclosure action, was issued at the request of Frank Weaver, Bellbrook, who brought suit against his son, John Weaver, asking quiet of title to the property.

The father asserts that twelve years ago he was persuaded, against his will, to give the son a mortgage on the premises to secure payment of $1,200. He claims the son obtained it under the guise of it being a legal document necessary to satisfy his wife.

The father declares the mortgage was given for the sole purpose of preventing the son and wife from separating, with the understanding it would never be enforced, but used only to assure harmony between them.

The plaintiff sets forth that he owned the property for many years and that he and his children joined together and had the old home remodeled in 1914.

The father furnished the necessary materials and the children donated their services for the required labor, according to the petition. The aged man declares he has lived in the house since 1914 and from time to time, because of his advanced age, a son or daughter would live with him.

Claiming that the defendant never mentioned a claim on the property adverse to his own, from the date the mortgage was given, January 20, 1920, until recently, the father says the son now claims the mortgage is a valid lien on the premises.

He has demanded, the petition recites, that his father move out and turn the place over to him in order that he may remodel it into a duplex and collect rents.

The defendant threatens foreclosure proceedings, according to the father, who asked that his son be restrained from disposing of the mortgage or instituting action to evict him. Miller and Finney are the plaintiff's attorneys.

XENIA AND GREENE COUNTY OBITUARY, FUNERAL NOTICES

MRS. BRIDGET DOWNES
Mrs. Bridget Downes, 80, widow of Michael Downes, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Alexander, 119 N. Galloway St., Xenia, Friday evening at 6:10 o'clock. She had been seriously ill three weeks suffering from a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Downes was born in Chilli-cothe March 8, 1851 but had spent the greater part of her life in Xenia. She had made her home with Mrs. Alexander seven years. Her husband preceded her in death in May, 1923. The following children survive: Mrs. John Alexander, at whose home she died; Mrs. W. Casey, Denver, Colo.; David Downes, Everett, Wash.; and John and Harry Downes, Xenia. Two sons and two daughters preceded her in death. Eleven grandchildren, a brother, John Gillespie, Cincinnati, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Peterson, Dayton, also survive.

Mrs. Downes was a member of St. Bridget Church where funeral services will be held Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Friends are asked to please omit flowers. Burial will be made in St. Bridget Cemetery.

DWIGHT MOORE
Dwight, 3-year-old son of the Rev. and Mrs. Walker Moore, 2416 Revere Ave., Belmont, formerly of this city, died at a Dayton hospital Friday morning at 5 o'clock. The Moore family formerly resided here on Xenia Ave., but moved to Dayton several months ago.

Besides his parents a sister, Alice, and a brother, Robert, survive. Funeral services will be held at the home Monday afternoon and burial will be made in Memorial Park Cemetery.

THOMAS MONAHAN
Thomas J. Monahan, 39, this city, died at a Dayton hospital Friday night. He had been confined in the hospital since April 13, 1931. Mr. Monahan was born in Xenia and had spent his entire life here. He was employed by the Hooven and Allison Co.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Eunice Monahan, he is survived by a daughter, Flossie Mae, 6, and a brother. The body has been removed to Noel's Funeral Home, W. Market St., where services will be held Tuesday morning at 7:30 o'clock followed by services at St. Bridget Church at 8 o'clock. Friends may call at the funeral home Monday afternoon and evening.

GRAND JURY PROBES COAL MINE RIOTING

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Feb. 27.—The outcome of a recent riot at the Wolford Coal Mine, near here, rested today in the hands of the next Tuscarawas County Grand Jury.

Thirty-four miners and alleged union sympathizers, charged with inciting a riot, were bound over when they were arraigned here late yesterday, and were freed on $100 bonds.

John and Junior Wolford, brothers and owners of the mine, who were accused of shooting at the union sympathizers when they tried to force working miners to join their strike, also were bound over to the grand jury.

John L.'s Roadwork

THOUGH JOHN L. had opened a saloon in Boston, his friends saw to it that he spent more time doing roadwork than behind the bar. His first comeback bout was with "Professor" John M. Laffin, whom he defeated Nov. 10 in New York in three rounds. Then Alf Greenfield, champion of Great Britain, came to the United States and challenged John L. On Nov. 17 John L. kayoed Alf in two rounds in New York.

GREENFIELD challenged again and Sullivan kayoed him for a second time in the fourth round. This bout was in Boston, Jan. 12, 1885. A week later he met Paddy Ryan, the old champion, in a return bout in New York, but police stopped the fight in the first round. John L. was challenged by Jack Burke, Irish heavyweight, for a Chicago bout. Sullivan went to Mt. Clemens, Mich., to train. There he kayoed a holdup man.

MONDAY—Off to England.

Bowling

Foot-Rest sheared another full game off the advantage of Arch-O-Pedic in the Krippendorf Bowling League by winning two out of three games from the league-leaders Friday night. Arch-O-Pedic bowlers are still in first place, but by a reduced margin of two games over Flex-Well. Leach recorded a series of 585 for the Foot-Rest quintet. Box score:

Nursery Hymn Popular With Radio Listeners

By MILDRED MASON

THE beautiful musical adaptation of that age old nursery prayer beginning "Now I lay me down to sleep—" with which Ford Rush, WLW's "Old Man Sunshine" concludes his children's broadcast every evening at 6:15 o'clock, is proving to be one of radio's most popular songs. Thousands of requests have been received for copies of this song—from young and old alike.

It might be interesting to "Old Man Sunshine's" fans to know that he has just signed an exclusive contract with WLW and will be heard over that station for another year. The new contract is said to involve $40,000. Rush's great claim to fame rests in the art of appeal to children.

Authors on Air.

Margaret Santry, authoress and newspaper woman, will appear as her own guest on "The Bath Club" program broadcast over the Columbia network Monday evening. This program is heard through station WKRC, at 8 o'clock.

To Replace Tibbett.

Richard Crooks, concert and operatic tenor, will appear as soloist in place of Lawrence Tibbett in that star's regular program Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati. Monday night Tibbett will sing at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, in the title role of "Simon Boccanegra", which he recently created with great success. Crooks has appeared with the Berlin Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony and the Philadelphia Symphony.

To Honor Mississippi.

With the Rosamund Johnson choir, and Rollin Smith, Negro baritone, who sings in eight different languages in his concert tours in the United States and Europe, "The Parade of States" broadcast will pay tribute to Mississippi in music and comment Monday evening. This feature is broadcast over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, at 9:30 o'clock. Mabel Jackson will sing popular songs of Mississippi in addition to the songs by the choir and Smith.

To Discuss Internal Revenue.

Problems and policies of the internal revenue bureau will be discussed in an interview between David Burnett, commissioner of internal revenue, and Oliver Owen Kuhn, managing editor of the Washington Star, during the National Radio Forum, over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, Monday at 10 p. m. The interview will deal with such problems as "Taxing the Gangsters", "Tax Refunds", "Taking the Bureau to the Taxpayers" and "Advice on Preparing and Filing Returns."

Lipstick Girl

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "DAD'S GIRL JORETTA" and "LOVE PREFERRED"

CHAPTER 60

WHEN THE GIRLS were preparing to go to lunch that day, Kitty observed suddenly, as if she had just noticed Marcia's ring, "Hello—another Morley diamond! That Romeo must own half the Kimberly mines!"

Marcia glanced up naively. "Do the Morleys own diamond mines, too?"

"'Twould be cheaper for the old man if they did. When you count the girls right here in the store that he's given a diamond, to say nothing of the others—la! it would add up to a fortune!"

All the gay joyousness faded from Marcia's face. "I don't under-stand—"

Kitty laughed. "You would if you lived in Huntville and knew Dana Morley. Why! Viva Eckland was expecting a ring any day—until you came on the scene and spoiled her act. But then, she'll probably get hers after you've left town—" she continued flippantly, not noticing Marcia's gray pallor.

"Oh no," Marcia assured her earnestly, "this is serious, Kitty. Did you know that Dana really has a great talent and is going to be famous some day in his own right?"

"Oh, yeah? With you for his inspiration, I suppose? That's the song he sung to me—let me see—it must be about three years now since I heard those words from Dana Morley. They are almost an echo now—a multiple echo that goes on through the years as Dana goes on his selfish, extravagant, and suffering. She was another girl who had dreamed of being the revered, admired and envied wife of Dana Morley.

Her tone softened at the stricken look on Marcia's face, and continued, "Take it from me, my dear, and don't let him hurt you. He's not worth it. I should have told you that, when you first met him."

Marcia turned away abruptly to conceal the tears that would not be suppressed. The world had become a drab, dull, aching void and the two karat stone on her finger a tremendous weight.

She was pathetically lovely as she went down to the hotel lobby to meet Dana that night. He came toward her eagerly, took both her hands and poured out admiration from his eyes. But she turned away quickly and led the way to a scheduled divan and sat down rigidly on its edge.

His eyes questioned her. "Shall we go? We'll be late for the show darling."

"We're not going to the show, to-night—or any night, Dana. At least not together. You may take any of your other girls you wish."

Then he noticed that she was not wearing his ring. "Why, Marcia, what's wrong?"

"Nothing much. I've just learned that becoming engaged is an every day experience with you. But I am not collecting diamond rings for curios," and she coolly held out the ring to him.

"But, dearest—has Kitty been talking?" He tried to laugh, but his voice sounded hollow. "The joke's on Kitty, after all. Because I've found the one and only girl for me," and he tried to take her hand to replace the ring.

She drew away quietly. "No, Dana. I'm sorry; but I can see now that I don't believe I love you either, in the way I thought. You just swept me off my feet, out of reason," she said, softly, slowly. "We didn't know each other at all. We have lived under such entirely different conditions, and I thought it was your kind of life I wanted to live. But I don't after all. Not if it means the danger of losing you with the greatest emotions of life, of tarnishing love with cheap affairs and gambling with the happiness of others."

"But you don't understand. I'm not playing with your affection. You are just upset over something you've heard about me. I'll grant that it could be plenty—and I'm sorry. Please forgive me," he implored. "But don't say you're not the kind of a girl to give a promise one day and break it the next."

"No, it isn't like me; but I must do it this time. It is you who must try to forgive me. I was homesick, yes, homesick, and didn't know it. I thought... I was seeking a great adventure, when all the time it is home I have been dreaming about."

She gazed out the window into the twinkling-lit night—silent, thoughtful, frightened at the step she had been about to take, blinded, dazzled. It was as if she had been groping about in dense darkness and someone had suddenly struck a match—a light that beckoned her toward the way she had been seeking. The light was a tiny flame and seemed very far ahead—but

THREE RESIDENCES SOLD BY SHERIFF

Three residence properties, two located in Xenia and the third in Fairfield, involved in mortgage foreclosure actions, were sold at public auction at the Court House Saturday morning. The properties were bid in by the Peoples' Building and Savings Co., the mortgagee.

Residence properties on N. Galway and N. West St., were sold jointly to the mortgagee for $9,000 the appraised value, in foreclosure proceedings against Mrs. Alberta Loyd, wife of James Loyd. The savings company held mortgages totalling $8,226.61. The properties were appraised separately at $6,500 and $2,500.

Ordered sold in a foreclosure suit brought against Lillian M. Mittan, a residence property in Fairfield was bid in by the savings company for $1,200. The mortgagee held a $1,552.50 judgment against the property, which had an appraised value of $1,800.

Nursery Hymn Popular With Radio Listeners

By MILDRED MASON

THE beautiful musical adaption of that age old nursery prayer beginning "Now I lay me down to sleep" with which Ford Rush, WLW's "Old Man Sunshine" concludes his children's broadcast every evening at 6:15 o'clock, is proving to be one of radio's most popular songs. Thousands of requests have been received for copies of this song—from young and old alike.

It might be interesting to "Old Man Sunshine's" fans to know that he has just signed an exclusive contract with WLW and will be heard over that station for another year. The new contract is said to involve $40,000. Rush's great claim to fame rests in the art of appeal to children.

Authors on Air. Margaret Santry, authoress and newspaper woman, will appear as her own guest on "The Bath Club" program broadcast over the Columbia network Monday evening. This program is heard through station WKRC, at 8 o'clock.

To Replace Tibbett. Richard Crooks, concert and operatic tenor, will appear as soloist in place of Lawrence Tibbett in that star's regular program Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati. Monday night Tibbett will sing at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, in the title role of "Simon Boccanegra", which he recently created with great success. Crooks has appeared with the Berlin Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony and the Philadelphia Symphony.

To Honor Mississippi. With the Rosamund Johnson choir, and Rollin Smith, Negro baritone, who sings in eight different languages in his concert tours in the United States and Europe, "The Parade of States" broadcast will pay tribute to Mississippi in music and comment Monday evening. This feature is broadcast over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, at 9:30 o'clock. Mabel Jackson will sing popular songs of Mississippi in addition to the songs by the choir and Smith.

To Discuss Internal Revenue. Problems and policies of the internal revenue bureau will be discussed in an interview between David Burnet, commissioner of internal revenue, and Oliver Owen Kuhn, managing editor of the Washington Star, during the National Radio Forum, over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, Monday at 10 p. m. The interview will deal with such problems as "Taxing the Gangsters", "Tax Refunds", "Taking the Bureau to the Taxpayers" and "Advice on Preparing and Filing Returns."

Although his father and grandfather were army men, Douglas Evans chose the stage for his career. He appeared in numerous musical comedies in New York and on the road before he turned to radio announcing. He went from Newport News, Va., to a local New York station before joining one of the large broadcasting companies recently.

"First Lady" Thrilled, First Talkie Billed

Ethel Barrymore, America's "first lady of the theater," is preparing, with all the anticipatory thrills of an ingenue, for her debut on the screen.

The Barrymore brothers, Lionel and John, will appear in her support, she admits, the first combined effort of the three. "It will be a wonderful thrill and I know I will like it. My only fear is the camera," says Miss Barrymore.

Her son, John Drew Colt, will accompany her to Hollywood but will not appear in the film. A special story will be written for the picture.

ANNOUNCE GENERAL SCHOLARSHIP TEST FOR SENIORS SOON

Announcements have just been issued by the state department of education for general scholarship tests in connection with the closing of the schools. Because some schools will close on an eight-month term, the latter part of April, these dates have been set early.

The general scholarship test for high school seniors will be held in each county Saturday, March 19. The rules provide that more than 35 per cent of the seniors who graduate this spring will be eligible. Seniors whose scholarship attitudes and behavior are excellent should be selected.

On or before March 5 each executive head under the county superintendent's jurisdiction, and also each superintendent of a city or exempted village or private school within the county should notify the county superintendent of the maximum number of seniors who will participate in this event.

Enrollment fee of fifty cents per pupil will be collected and forwarded to the state director of scholarship tests for the purpose of meeting the necessary expenses.

The announcement of final results will be made Saturday evening, May 7, at Miami and Ohio State Universities, and the announcement of state winners will be made May 21 at Columbus.

A number of scholarships covering tuition for a period of time will be granted by many Ohio colleges to those who rank high. More than 100 scholarships were offered last year.

TWO FORECLOSURE SUITS ARE FILED; ACTION APPEALED

Two suits seeking to foreclose on separate pieces of property situated in Greene County and alleging non-payment of notes valued aggregately at $30,757.55, have been filed in Common Pleas Court against Stanley S. Swango and Eva T. Swango, 2603 Overlook Ave., Dayton.

Setting up twenty-one causes of action, The Union Central Life Insurance Co., Cincinnati, brought one action for $16,831.62, involving 277.91 acres of real estate located in Xenia Twp. The Stillwater Valley Bank Co., Covington, O., named co-defendant, is asked to set up an interest claimed in the mortgaged property. Estabrook, Finn and McKee are attorneys for the plaintiff.

The second foreclosure action against the Dayton couple, filed by the Peoples Building and Savings Co., this city, through Attorney C. W. Whitman, seeks a judgment for $13,925.93.

FILES APPEAL

Appeal from a decision of Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith, awarding Ervin Hollingsworth a judgment for $21, the full amount sought, claimed to be due in payment for shredding corn on a farm owned by the defendant, has been taken to Common Pleas Court by Sam Engelman, Xenia merchant.

JOHN NORTH ENTERS COMMISSION RACE

For the fourth time in the last twelve years, John A. North, retired Xenia plumber, has become a candidate for the Board of Greene County Commissioners.

The first time he ran for the board in 1920 he was elected and served a four-year term. His declaration of candidacy for this year filed with the board of elections Friday, makes Mr. North the third Republican candidate to file for the two vacancies to be created on the board by expiration of the terms of Commissioners A. E. Beam and J. H. Lackey.

Leroy Wolf, Xenia, seeking the Republican nomination and re-election for a second term as county recorder, and Dr. R. L. Haines, Republican, Jamestown, desiring to succeed himself as county coroner, have also filed their petitions of candidacy.

"I like a Fair Fighter"

"THAT'S one of the things I like most about Chesterfields... the attitude of the people who make them. They positively lean over backwards to be fair and square.

"I've been watching their advertisements for years. And do you know the thing that struck me most forcibly? They're so reasonable! Just a plain straightforward statement of facts. No wild claims... Nothing that's hard to believe!

"I wouldn't want to be a competitor of Chesterfield! They make too good a cigarette! I really believe they're the mildest I ever tasted.

"I can smoke Chesterfields any hour of the day or night... They're so mild, I don't even bother to keep track of how many I've smoked. They must be purer, too... they certainly taste better to me!"

ANNOUNCE GENERAL SCHOLARSHIP TEST FOR SENIORS SOON

Announcements have just been issued by the state department of education for general scholarship tests in connection with the closing of the schools. Because some schools will close on an eight-month term, the latter part of April, these dates have been set early.

The general scholarship test for high school seniors will be held in each county Saturday, March 19. The rules provide that more than 35 per cent of the seniors who graduate this spring will be eligible. Seniors whose scholarship, attitudes, and behavior are excellent should be selected.

On or before March 5 each executive head under the county superintendent's jurisdiction, and also each superintendent of a city or exempted village or private school within the county should notify the county superintendent of the maximum number of seniors who will participate in this event.

Enrollment fee of fifty cents per pupil will be collected and forwarded to the state director of scholarship tests for the purpose of meeting the necessary expenses.

The announcement of final results will be made Saturday evening, May 7, at Miami and Ohio State Universities, and the announcement of state winners will be made May 21 at Columbus.

A number of scholarships covering tuition for a period of time will be granted by many Ohio colleges to those who rank high. More than 100 scholarships were offered last year.

TWO FORECLOSURE SUITS ARE FILED; ACTION APPEALED

Two suits seeking to foreclose on separate pieces of property situated in Greene County and alleging non-payment of notes valued aggregately at $30,767.55, have been filed in Common Pleas Court against Stanley S. Swango and Eva T. Swango, 2605 Overlook Ave., Dayton.

Setting up twenty-one causes of action, The Union Central Life Insurance Co., Cincinnati, brought one action for $16,831.62, involving 27.91 acres of real estate located in Xenia Twp. The Stillwater Valley Bank Co., Covington, O., named co-defendant, is asked to set up an interest claimed in the mortgaged property. Estabrook, Finn and McKee are attorneys for the plaintiff.

The second foreclosure action against the Dayton couple, filed by the Peoples Building and Savings Co., this city, through Attorney C. W. Whitmer seeks a judgment for $13,935.93.

FILES APPEAL

Appeal from a decision of Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith, awarding Ervin Hollingsworth a judgment for $21, the full amount sought, claimed to be due in payment for shredding corn on a farm owned by the defendant, has been taken to Common Pleas Court by Sam Engelman, Xenia merchant.

JOHN NORTH ENTERS COMMISSION RACE

For the fourth time in the last twelve years, John A. North, retired Xenia plumber, has become a candidate for the Board of Greene County Commissioners.

The first time he ran for the board in 1920 he was elected and served a four-year term. His declaration of candidacy for this year filed with the board of elections Friday, makes Mr. North the third Republican candidate to file for the two vacancies to be created on the board by expiration of the terms of Commissioners A. E. Beam and J. H. Lackey.

Leroy Wolf, Xenia, seeking the Republican nomination and re-election for a second term as county recorder, and Dr. R. L. Haines, Republican, Jamestown, desiring to succeed himself as county coroner, have also filed their petitions of candidacy.

IT WON'T BE LONG

It is only a matter of property settlement now as Mary Mulhern, ex-Follies girl, files her divorce against Jack Pickford, former screen star and brother of Mary Pickford. Photo shows Mrs. Pickford in Los Angeles at the office of her attorney.

WAR TAKES TOLL IN MANCHURIA

After this Japanese plane had been brought down by Chinese fire near Harbin, Manchuria, crowds of Russian and Chinese peasants swarmed over the wreckage to satisfy their curiosity. The plane was set on fire by soldiers and completely wrecked as its supply of bombs exploded, leaving dead and dying on the field. Above, the plane after it was brought down; below, wreckage.

"I like a Fair Fighter"

"THAT'S one of the things I like most about Chesterfields... the attitude of the people who make them. They positively lean over backwards to be fair and square."

"I've been watching their advertisements for years. And do you know the thing that struck me most forcibly? They're so reasonable! Just a plain straightforward statement of facts. No wild claims... Nothing that's hard to believe!"

"I wouldn't want to be a competitor of Chesterfield! They make too good a cigarette! I really believe they're the mildest I ever tasted."

"I can smoke Chesterfields any hour of the day or night... They're so mild, I don't even bother to keep track of how many I've smoked. They must be purer, too... they certainly taste better to me!"

"Music that Satisfies." Hear Nat Shilkret's 35-piece orchestra and Alex Gray, soloist, every night except Sunday—entire Columbia Network—10:30 Eastern Standard Time.
